ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., May 4—Left Omaha this morning for a little flight and as we happened to get a tail wind just kept on coming.

Will soon be in Salt Lake. Make Beverly Hills tonight. That's rambling.

Going to California to see that they don't have a recount on Smith and Hoover like they did on Hughes that time.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

New Castle High school achieved another great honor yesterday, this time it being the victory of the musical organizations of the high school over the competing schools of Western Pennsylvania, at Grove City. Prof. Laverne Irvine and his assistants in the schools, are deserving of unstinted credit for this performance of the local school organizations.

And right along with New Castle is Bessemer high school which brought back first honors in the Class B school competitions. Pa Newc extends his congratulations to this up and coming county school as well. Bessemer schools are making a fine record for the Lawrence County town, and for the school system in that locality.

Remember when you come down town on Saturday morning to watch the pet parade, your place is on the sidewalk, not out in the middle of the street. Give the kids a chance. Stay on the sidewalk.

Progress always brings its drawbacks as well. Radio fans in the vicinity of Highland avenue school are now complaining that the warning blinkers recently placed near the school are knocking out radio reception entirely. The blinkers should be turned off quickly after school sessions are out, Pa. News would opine.

Tomorrow New Castle gets away to the start of the league baseball season. Canton is the opposing league team at Centennial field. New Castle has a real team this year, and high class baseball is promised on the local league lot. Get behind the team and attend the games.

It is surprising to Pa Newc how much change just a few days of warm weather can make in the city. Trees are breaking bud, tulips are in flower, for summer seems at last to be on its way.

On North Mercer street, but a few doors above The Castleton, there lives a woman who has several boarders. Each morning the boarders, great grey squirrels, will come to her front porch and eat the nuts she places there for them. Others, more tame than the rest, will even take the nuts out of her hand.

At twelve o'clock last evening, some of the smaller children were straggling home from the music contest at Grove City. Little fellows, horns bigger than they were, rode the street cars alone. On each face was a smile, for they had won.

Although there is not much noise being made about the airport on the Harlansburg road, yet work is progressing steadily and rapidly. Now the runways are ready and the men are leveling up other parts of the field, so that it will be easier for an aviator to land.

Another biological sport turned up the other day. A boy who was graduated from college in electrical engineering is now leading a dance band and looking prosperous.

At the Y. M. C. A. they want all of their members to learn to swim this spring. Special classes have been formed. The best of instruction is offered.

By the end of the week, the New Castle Motor Club will be in its new home in The Castleton. There it will be headquarters for tourists coming through the city.

Coolidge Likely To Exercise Veto On Farm Measure

"FARM BLOC" IN JUBILANT STATE

Long And Bitter Fight In House Is Ended By Vote Of 304 To 121

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The congressional "farm bloc"—jubilant over its most smashing victory in the four-year fight over the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill—today for the first time seriously considered the possibility of passing the bill over a presidential veto.

With a two-thirds majority already recorded in the senate and almost two-thirds vote in the house, the bill will go to President Coolidge with the strongest congressional endorsement ever given it.

Farm Bloc Triumph.

The action in the house last night after a long and bitter fight was a remarkable triumph for the "farm bloc". After the house had once defeated the equalization fee—the heart of the bill—the "farm bloc" gained control, twice approved the fee and then passed the bill by a vote of 204 to 121. The senate vote was 53 to 23.

Although the bill passed by the house was an amendment to the senate measure, the bills involved the same principles. Little difficulty was anticipated by the "farm bloc" leaders in ironing out the differences before the bill goes to Mr. Coolidge's desk.

Some of the more optimistic supporters of the measure still hope for presidential approval. Mr. Coolidge, however, has already indicated plainly that he will veto the bill, as he did last year.

No Date Set For Senate Probe Of Campaign Funds

New Senate "Slush Fund" Committee Awaits Replies From Candidates

HOPE TO FINISH BEFORE CONVENTION

All Presidential Candidates Will Be Required To Offer Testimony To Probers

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The senate's new "Slush Fund" committee will launch its public hearings on expenditures in presidential primary campaigns as soon as the candidates in both major parties reply to invitations to testify, it was announced today by Senator Steiwer (R) of Oregon, chairman.

Invitations have been sent to six Republicans and eight Democratic presidential candidates. All were expected to agree to appear voluntarily instead of awaiting official subpoenaes. Senator Charles Curtis (R) of Kansas, a Republican possibility, and Senator Walter L. George, of Georgia, a Democratic "dark horse," both announced they were ready to testify "on a moment's notice."

Curtis, first to reply to the prohibition questionnaire sent out recently by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, said he was ready to testify either today or tomorrow. The "Slush Fund" committee meanwhile will await replies from a majority of the fourteen candidates solicited before setting a definite date for the hearings.

May Start Saturday

The hearings may begin tomorrow, although the absence of several senators, who went to Hampton Roads

PET PARADE PLANS MADE

PARADE TO MOVE PROMPTLY AT TEN

On your marks, fellows. Get set, ready for Saturday morning for the Pet Parade, which will be sponsored by the Rotary Club as a part of the Boys Week activities.

Chairman John Myers stated today that the only thing he hadn't done in the matter of arrangements was guaranteeing good weather and that this was being taken care of. With weather such as is prevalent today, New Castle will see a monster turn out of pets.

Everybody's Welcome

There are no restrictions on the parade. Any boy in New Castle can enter it, and bring his pet with him. No matter if it is a dog, a cat, a pony or an educated goldfish that does the Charleston, they are all eligible and for the better entries, there will be prizes.

The parade starts at ten o'clock and boys should be at the Legion Home before that time in order to give the marshals, John Myers and Harry S. Bailey, an opportunity to get the parade lined up.

At ten o'clock the pet cavalcade will move out from the Legion Home.

Japanese Send More Troops To Tsinan Sector

Battle Between Japanese And Chinese Nationalists Continues To Rage

(International News Service)

TOKIO, May 4.—With the battle between Japanese troops and Chinese Nationalists still raging at Tsinan, five thousand additional Japanese troops have been sent to China as reinforcements, the war office announced today.

Three thousand Japanese troops are entrenched in war formation at Tsinan. They are fighting valiantly against heavy odds. The Nationalists outnumber them many times.

The Nationalists suffered heavy losses in their first clash with the Japanese. One hundred were killed and many wounded. The Japanese suffered five dead, twenty wounded and one missing.

The number of casualties resulting from the subsequent fighting is still unknown. It is believed that losses on both sides were heavy as the fighting was fierce and almost continuous.

Lieutenant Royal Thomas, In Air 35 Hours And 25 Minutes In Endurance Test

SETS NEW RECORD FOR "SOLO" FLIGHT

(International News Service)

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., May 4.—With his attempt to break the world's endurance flight record cut short by an accident to a valve on the gasoline tank of the plane Reliance, Lieutenant Royal Thomas today made up for lost sleep. He was forced to land at the field here at 11:50 o'clock last night, after having been in the air for 35 hours, 25 minutes and eight seconds.

While Lieut. Thomas fell far short of the record of 53 hours, 36 minutes and 31 seconds, set by George Haldeman and Eddie Stinson last month at Jacksonville, Fla., he established a new endurance record for solo flying. The previous mark of 33½ hours for solo flying was made by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his trans-Atlantic flight last year.

Probe Death Of Wealthy Broker

MYSTERY SEEN IN FATAL INJURY

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—Detectives today were probing mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Cornelius R. Winant, 30, wealthy broker and World War hero, in a room at the Princeton Club here last night. Winant was a brother of John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire, who today was aiding police in their effort to discover how the broker received an injury which resulted in his death.

Chief Medical Examiner Norris ordered the body taken to the morgue for an autopsy. The exact cause of death was not determined, but it was believed that the broker died from a fracture of the skull, he was assisted into the Princeton Club by a taxi driver last evening, he was dazed and bleeding from several deep scratches on his face.

The broker's brother immediately was notified. He summoned Dr. S. B. Ross, club physician. The injured clubman refused to reveal how he had been hurt.

Senator Walsh May Withdraw His Candidacy

Poor Showing In California Primary Hastens Plan To Withdraw

SENATOR REED PLANS TO STICK

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 4. — The Democratic presidential situation, which is fast becoming simplified through Gov. Al Smith's steadily mounting roll of delegates, may be further clarified within the next 48 hours.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, back of whose candidacy there has been grouped the ultra-dry, anti-Tammany bitter-enders against Smith, is considering formally withdrawing from the contest, it was reported today that it might take the form of a message to his supporters in Montana requesting them not to present his name to the Houston convention.

Since the California primary on Tuesday, when he ran far behind Smith and Senator Reed, of Missouri, Senator Walsh has been in consultation with his friends and supporters. A number of them have advised him to withdraw while there is still time to do so with dignity. Some of the more bitter anti-Smith advisers have not concurred in this, and have urged him to go on to the very end, but they have been in the minority.

Walsh May Omit

The candidacy of the Montana senator is considered by Democratic leaders to be in an untenable position. As matters now stand, Walsh is assured of but eight delegations at Houston, these being from his own state, and it is well known in Democratic quarters that the Montana delegation was listed in the Smith camp before Senator Walsh formally announced his candidacy some weeks ago.

The apparent hopelessness of sticking eight delegates up against Smith's total of approximately 532 out of the 682 thus far selected has impressed the senator himself as well as his friends.

If Senator Walsh does efface himself from the picture, it will leave Senator Reed the one outstanding

Official Count Of Primary Vote Is Announced

No Changes Made In Unofficial Result As Given By News

MANY NAMES ARE WRITTEN ON BALLOTS

Presidential Preference Shows Some Interesting Results In Both Parties

In the official count of the primary of April 24th, which count was completed in the court house on Thursday afternoon, some interesting figures are found. The total vote was woefully light, possibly one of the lightest votes, comparatively, ever cast in this county.

On the Republican ticket the voters who expressed a preference for president named Herbert Hoover in Lawrence County, with Calvin Coolidge running second to him and Al Smith running third. On the Democratic ticket Al Smith got 43 votes for president, with Herbert Hoover getting 35. There was the usual scattering vote for all offices, probably cast by people who wished to extend a compliment to some friend.

Figures In Local Races.

The races most interesting, perhaps were the ones in which local men competed for state offices. In the fight for the Republican nomination for State Senator, George T. Weingartner got 5393 votes and Benjamin E. Thompson 2367. Harry M. Long got one.

The Democratic vote showed Weingartner getting seven, Thompson 3, J. V. Hannon, 2, A. Martin Graham 2, Milton A. Bickett, 2, and the following got one each: James P. Leaf, W. E. Porter, Ira M. Ramsey, Bart Richards, Robert Strickler, Henry Akens, Tad Shields, and Bill Pullick.

For the nomination for General Assembly the Republican vote for the first district was Bart Richards 2077, Martha K. Bigley 1441, Robert Strickler, Jr., 527, Harry M. Long, 475. The Democratic vote for the nomination in the first district was, Ira M. Ramsey, 21, Martha K. Bigley, 6, Bart Richards, 5, Wilbur Bear, 5, W. E. Porter 1, Harry Long 1, J. W. Newell, 1. There was but one Prohibition vote cast, Martha K. Bigley getting that.

In the second district, the Republican vote was: Milton A. Bickett, 1935, J. W. Cox, 1652, Robert Strickler, 4. The Democratic nomination went to George R. Andrews, and the

Polar Dirigible Lands In Norway

FORCED TO BATTLE STRONG HEADWINDS

(International News Service)

OSLO, Norway, May 4.—After battling head-winds for almost 30 hours, the polar dirigible Italia landed at Vadsoe, Norway, at 9:10 a. m. today.

Gen. Nobile had hoped to resume his flight late today, but a dispatch from Vadsoe said that a violent storm has arisen which might delay the Italia's departure.

General Umberto Nobile, commander of the ship, was warmly greeted by the mayor of the town and a civic delegation. The ship's crew of 16 and Titania, their fox-terrier pet, were all in good condition after the turbulent flight.

The Italia will be refueled at Vadsoe today and will continue to King's Bay, Spitzbergen, tonight, weather permitting, General Nobile said upon landing.

The Italia left Stolp, Germany, at 3:23 a. m. yesterday. It encountered no difficulty on the first part of the journey and made good speed until it had passed over Stockholm, Sweden.

Encounter Winds.

Then Nobile began to run into difficulties. The strong head-winds drove the dirigible from its course several times and Nobile was forced to wireless to get his bearings.

While crossing the gulf of Bothnia, the ship wandered aimlessly for some time, going east instead of north until Galma Kareby was reached. There

New Castle High Band; Orchestra Take First Place

HUNDREDS TAKE PART IN CONTESTS

Erie And Oil City Furnish Greatest Competition For New Castle

Lawrence county school students blazed their way to another outstanding musical victory at Grove City when New Castle was awarded first place in the entire class A contest and the Bessemer high school was adjudged the winner of the class B section in the Northwestern Pennsylvania inter-school musical contest, which was held in the college town yesterday afternoon and evening.

New Castle won their place by one point, defeating Academy high school of Erie by a total scoring of 14 to 13. Bessemer also achieved its honor by one point, with Albion coming in second with a total score of 14 to 13 points.

The musical organizations from both schools performed well in the contest, in which there were nearly twenty other competitors.

It is true that all of the groups that entered the contest did not come home winners, but nevertheless all of those competing did well.

Band-Orchestra Win

Not only did New Castle win first place in the entire contest, but two organizations representing her, namely: the Senior High school band and the senior orchestra of the Senior High school, were awarded first place in their respective classes by a unanimous vote of the adjuticators.

Musical organizations from the Bessemer high school and the Union township high school of Lawrence county, the Academy high school of Erie, the Central high school of Erie, Erie East high school, the Oil City high school, the Grove City high school, Greenville high school, the Albion high school, the Townville high school, the Roosevelt Junior high school of Erie, the Gridley Junior high of Erie, in addition to the groups entered from New Castle, competed in the contest.

Both the auditoriums of the Grove City high school and the United Presbyterian church, next door, were used in the contest. The programs in both places opened promptly at noon.

Program Opens

New Castle was not represented in the opening contest in the high school auditorium, as only class B orchestra work was carried out at that time. In that section Mars was awarded first place and Bessemer, second.

Class A chorus work was carried out at the Presbyterian church from 12 o'clock until 1:15 p. m. New Castle was entered in this. The first section

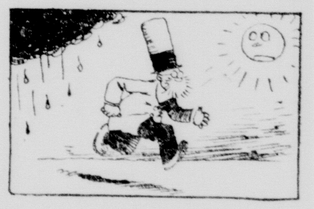
Arthur Mometer



The annual pest gets in today, that lad who is uncouth and rough, stops you as you pass him by and queries, "is it hot enough." All winter long he's hung around and never mentioned cold or heat, at home he mentioned not a word, nor in the shop or on the street. But just as soon as summer comes, or warm spring days, that is enough, he opens up in tenor key, and questions "is it hot enough." Let this be known, in accents loud, no matter what the weather be, I do not want this pesky lad, annoying or a-questioning me. If it is hot, well it is hot, nor do I wish to listen more, it's warm today, don't say a word, it's galloped up to eighty-four.

Famous Chicago Cabaret Ordered Under Padlock

Notorious Million Dollar Rainbow Garden Cabaret Is To Close Soon

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, May 4.—The passing of Chicago's post-war "speakeasy" night club era, which has offered an artificial retreat for the die-hard merrymakers of pre-Volstead days, was seen today in the padlocking of Fred Mann's famous million dollar rainbow gardens.

Mann was given ten days to wind up his business, dispose of food on hand and pay off his creditors. The place was ordered closed for one year by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley after Mann and his attorney, Benedict Short, acquiesced in a "consent" degree. The action, in effect, left Mann in the light of pleading guilty, although it had not been charged that liquor was sold in his cabaret.

The injunction was granted on the testimony of undercover dry agents who told of seeing patrons imbide from hip flasks after "set-ups" of gingerale and ice cubes had been furnished by Mann's waiters. The serving of "setups", it was held, is evidence of collusion to violate the prohibition law.

Mann's "surrender" practically dooms to darkness twelve other famous cafes and night clubs with similar cases pending against them.

Reeves To Have Streets Flushed

City Council Has Not Yet Bought Sweeper As Provided In Budget

Councilman C. H. Reeves today stated that providing the warm weather continues he will order the department of street employes to soon commence flushing streets at night.

Last winter Reeves stated that the flushing system inaugurated here by former Councilman Louis Genkinger would be followed this summer.

As yet the city has not secured a sweeper although $6,500 was provided in the budget. It is expected that the council will soon vote on the question.

Several months ago in preparing for sweeping streets at night council passed an ordinance banning automobiles from streets between 1 a. m. and 6 a. m.

A boquet of beautiful flowers in the News office has occasioned considerable discussion whether they are jonquils or daffodils. They are flowers consisting of light yellow petals and a trumphet-like corona of bright yellow color. Most people call them jonquils, but some call them daffodils while the florist says the argument may be settled by calling them narcissi as both the jonquil and the daffodil are but members of the narcissus family. By consulting with the florist and the dictionary technically the flowers in question are daffodils, while the jonquil is a flower with a short indurate corona. Yet the florist says that the flower with the bright yellow corona is commonly known as jonquil.

NO DATE SET FOR SENATE PROBE OF CAMPAIGN FUNDS

And Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, Senators James A. Reed, of Missouri, and Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, former Senators Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio, and Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, and Governor Albert M. Ritchie, of Maryland, on the Democratic side.

The committee not only asked each candidate to say when he would appear to testify, but asked him to name all "authorized chairmen, managers, treasurers and other representatives acting in your behalf." These will be examined after the candidates have testified.

It is the purpose of the committee to carry its investigation as far as possible before the Republican convention assembles at Kansas City on June 12. This would give the committee but five weeks for its inquiry. Thereafter, unless some extraordinary development occurred, the inquiry would be limited solely to the campaign expenditures of the successful nominees in all political parties.

Rumors that the Pyle Caravan was "on the rocks" were refuted by Harold "Red" Grange, co-partner in the enterprise and acting generalissimo while Pyle carries on ahead of the heel and toe show.

"Chicago will welcome the foot race with the accord that acclaims men who have achieved what in the past was thought impossible. I have had my fling at collegiate and pro football and also a dip into the movies, but this is the greatest sport racket of all time."

Into Chicago Saturday.

Niels Nelson, Chicago's lone contestant in the field and holder of thirteenth place with an elapsed time of 544:52:47 declined to predict whether he would head the van into the Windy City Saturday. Nelson's outstanding bid for recognition came some weeks ago when he paced the field for the day on the Bridgeport-Elreno, Oklahoma lap.

"Too many of the fellows are willing to give their all to convince the home folks," Nelson said. "The race ends in New York and if the 40 mile lap from Joliet to the First Regiment Armory is through heavy traffic I'll pick my way cautiously."

Today's lap exceeds by one mile the 57 mile trek from Danby, a water hole in Mojave desert to Needles, on the banks of the sluggish Colorado river. On that way, John Cronick, Saskatoon, Sak., now in tenth place, set the pace that claimed seven men.

Shortly after the runs and walkers headed out of here at six o'clock the sun rose to its height, with the mercury bubbling at eighty degrees in the shade. Later in the day it climbed to 90 degrees.

Sunday the bunion derbyists will trek forty miles from Chicago to Gary, Ind., this will be followed Monday by sixty miles to South Bend, Ind.

Earl Dilks, of New Castle, Pa., with an elapsed time of 546:21:56, is in thirty-first place. His time on his last control was 5:51:43.

Pyle Spikes Rumors

Joliet, Ill., May 4.—C. C. Pyle, detained here as the result of an attachment being placed upon his land yacht "America," today spiked reports that his battle of blisters is in any way endangered.

"This last plaster is the 87th that has been pinned on me and mine since Red Grange and myself went into business," the promoter said. "We have yet to lose an action in that number.

"The motor cruiser 'America' is not my property, but the people from whom it was rented have instituted replevin and it will be turned back to my use today. Then I will motor ahead—not run—to Eastern points to line up details."

Pyle's carnival, the sideshows accompanying the caravan, have made their last stand under "Cross Country's" banner.

"Beginning with our Chicago appearance Saturday, Red Grange's athletic show will be the feature interspersing the arrival and introduction of the runners," Pyle said. "There won't be any of the so-called catch-penny attraction."

Credit Bureaus State Convention Program Given

Delegates From All Over State Coming Here On May 15 And 16

Program for the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Associated Credit Bureaus, which will take place in New Castle, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 15 and 16, is announced this morning by Ray F. Hall, manager of the New Castle Credit Exchange, and the man who is responsible for getting the convention for New Castle.

As outlined by Mr. Hall, the program will contain many interesting features which should be of great benefit to all those interested in credit work. At ten o'clock Tuesday, May 15, the first session of the two day conference will convene. The address of welcome will be given by Ray F. Hall, and the response will be made by A. B. Buckeridge of Pittsburgh, the president of the state association.

The afternoon session will be called to order at 1:30, and the first address will be given by Mr. Buckeridge who will speak on "Observations of a Credit Bureau Manager". This will be followed by an open discussion led by Mr. Hall, after which a discussion of the bulletin of the associations will take place. "Should Credit Bureau Managers Enter Into Other Civic Activities", will be the subject of an address by W. L. Daniels of Lewistown and W. A. Bush of Greensburg. J. E. Corn of Altoona and E. H. Ward of Uniontown will discuss "Selling Bureau Service". This session will end with a general discussion of the problems which confront a credit bureau manager.

Wednesday the morning program has not been set, but it is thought that it will take the form of a question and answer discussion, headed by President Buckeridge. In the afternoon, a quizz on credit bureau management will be give, followed by five minute talks by A. B. Buckeridge, J. E. Corn, Ray F. Hall, Miss Mary Froelich, Mr. Hershey and Mr. Gigl. In the evening the delegates will be the guests of the New Castle exchange at a theater party.

"Where shall I put the plane?"

Will Try Again.

He asserted he would have been able to break the world's record if the valve had not opened. When he began the flight at 12:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, he was carrying 480 gallons of gasoline.

After listening to the constant roar of his motor for 35½ hours, the aviator was unable to hear questions asked by the men on the field. He also was a trifle stiff.

Before falling asleep at a nearby hotel, he said he would make another attempt to break the record after he had "caught up with his sleep."

"The motor began to cough just before I came down and then it suddenly stopped," he explained.

The flyer was clean shaven at the end of his flight. Late last night he set the stabilizer and shaved himself, completing the operation without a scratch.

SENATOR WALSH MAY WITHDRAW HIS CANDIDACY

candidate against the New York Governor. However, Reed is not much more acceptable to some of the forces that have been behind Walsh than is Gov. Smith himself.

Reed will not withdraw under any circumstances. He made that plain in his message to Josephus Daniels, the Raleigh publisher, denying imputations that he would have anything to do with a third party movement.

"I am a Democrat," said Reed, inferring that as a Democrat he was willing to stand or fall by the convention verdict.

The talk of a third party independent movement against Smith had pretty well died out today. No influential party figure took it seriously at any stage, and Reed's quick disclaimer killed it entirely save for the more radical anti-Smith Democrats like Senator Heflin, of Alabama, and Senator Blease, of South Carolina.

Heflin predicted today there will be a revolt if Smith is nominated but he declined to say today who would lead it.

Borah Merely Smiles.

Blease said if the Democrats nominated Smith there would be a dry ticket in the field. He even named the ticket: "Borah and McAdoo."

"It's being strongly talked right now," said the South Carolinian.

Borah merely smiled when told of it.

So confident are the Smith people that the governor is "in" at Houston that they are already talking in Washington of running mates. Rep. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, is favored by a number of the Smith leaders in congress. Hull is dry, Protestant, comes from a doubtful state, and has a considerable party following from his long service as chairman of the national committee.

down to Washington street on Jefferson, up Washington to the East Side Pennsylvania Railroad station and then counter march to the Legion Home where the prizes will be awarded.

There will be a band to head the parade and the police department has promised to police the streets. But if you are a spectator help the police to give the boys a chance, by staying on the sidewalk.

All right fellows. Get the pet cleaned up today, and get ready for the Pet Parade on Saturday morning. It will be more fun than a circus, and more entertaining than a moving picture show.

Saturday is the day, ten o'clock is the time and the Legion Home is the place.

Later the Italia was sighted over Brahestad, Finland, apparently off its course. Nobile radioed for directions and finally got his bearings and proceeded northward directly to Vadsoe.

At Vadsoe, the Norwegian government had prepared everything for the landing and refueling of the ship and a large crowd of spectators was on hand to welcome the Italian commander and his crew.

The silver-sheened ship circled the field several times while the crowd cheered. After releasing a quantity of helium gas, Nobile effected a landing without difficulty.

FIFTY-FIFTY FOR SEXES

PHILOSOPHIC observers have long realized that one of these days men would be rising up to demand their rights, and now it has come. Male Britishers are alarmed at the prospect facing them as all women are enfranchised at the age of 21, giving a feminine majority of 2,000,000 voters. So there is agitated talk of a "sex war", and the most agitated members of the male sex have organized what they call a "Fifty-Fifty League."

The idea is to scare women into submission by threatening them with all the public responsibilities heretofore assumed by men, and depriving women of all the special privileges and prerogatives of their sex.

Thus they demand that women be made liable to military conscription, just like men; that "laws and practices which relieve women of the economic consequences of their acts" be annulled; that the marriage laws and customs and usages connected with them which specially safeguard women be "rectified".

Let the sacred men look out. It would be just like British women to take them at their word, help abolish all feminine privileges, assume their full military and political responsibilities, and then start in governing those trembling Englishmen as no Englishmen have ever been governed before.

Men, especially Englishmen, can't seem to get it through their heads that men always have been governed by women, and always will be. A man is bossed first by his mother, then his wife, then his daughters and granddaughters. Men collectively are bossed by women collectively. But there is a difference in feminine forms of government. Those men are lucky whose womenfolk disguise their rule in the graceful pretense of submission and kindly ministration.

A SUCCESSFUL AMBASSADOR

DWIGHT L. MORROW, ambassador of the United States at the City of Mexico, must be given credit for bringing to an end the friction of more than 10 years' standing between the two countries.

While he has been at his post only a few months and was a new man in the diplomatic world, he has done his work so well that strain has given way to friendly contact and diplomatic relations between the two nations are more nearly normal than at any other time in the last dozen years.

And the adjustment made bids fair to establish permanent relations mutually pleasant and important, as the troubles are being put out of the picture. Objectionable laws, passed in Mexico when relations were unpleasant, laws that reflected some feeling of vengeance and reprisal, have been repealed or modified. American investments in that country are given that degree of business consideration this nation has requested and good conscience has required. And this has been done by one man, who was sent there at a time when feelings were strained and the post promised more of difference than agreement, more of friction than pleasure.

This country seeks a just and lasting peace with Mexico, our neighbor to the South. If Ambassador Morrow is able to establish that peace he will have been a great ambassador, an honorable representative of the American people.

BIRDS AND FISHES

THIS year's flying season opened auspiciously with the passage of the Atlantic by Koehl, Von Huenefeld and Fitzmaurice in their German plane. For the first time in history man has flown westward from Europe to America. It was not so perfect, triumphant a flight as that of Lindbergh in the other direction, but it suffices. The east-to-west jinx, which foiled several brave pioneers, is now broken. There will doubtless be other such flights, and more completely satisfactory ones, before the year ends.

The swimming season opened auspiciously, too, with the final conquest of the mighty sea-river of the Strait of Gibraltar by an English office girl who took time from her typing to turn this monumental trick. There will be many another swimming feat in 1928.

The astrologers say we have entered the sign of Aquarius, the Water-Bearer, who can be seen in the sky—if you have a good imagination—pouring water into the mouth of the Southern Fish. Maybe that has something to do with it.

MAKING SHOPPING EASY

THIS is truly the age of advertising, and ever expanding advertising. One, who counts himself among the "common people," on reading the advertisements in his newspaper remarked that it is dangerous to the purse to read the advertisements too carefully because you can not even scan them without finding something you want and at a price and of a quality you cannot afford not to take advantage of.

It can not be charged against newspaper advertisements that they force upon the public unwanted merchandise. They do, however, inform the public where their merchandise wants can be fulfilled and at the lowest cost. Newspaper advertisements have eradicated the hit and miss and the hurry and scurry from shopping.

Civilization may be saved, but it will never look the same again.

A congressman who wanted to get home from Washington quickly hired an airplane and it was wrecked on the way and he was killed. Will this keep other congressmen from trying to get home quickly?

The person who is supposed to write it may be responsible for the non-arrival of that expected letter, but it is the postman who gets the blame.

A Brooklyn preacher declares that every husband should have one day off a week. He says a man who works to support a family is entitled to at least the privileges of the servant girl. Most husbands would be tickled pink if they had half the privileges and conveniences of the modern servant girl. And how about the wife having a day off once a week?

We have known of mistakes made by New Castle people. For instance, public institutions have been named for people who did not care anything about New Castle or anyone who lived here. Supposing those places had been named for anyone of half a dozen New Castle people. We are quite sure the mortgage would have been paid off long ago. The question of naming an airport is up. It might be named after some chap who may fly over it some day but that will not help pay for it—and help will be asked to pay for it sure as you live.

BILL WAS PLEASED.

Pittsburgh, May 2, 1928.

Mr. Fred L. Rentz, President
The New Castle News
New Castle, Penna.
Dear Fred:—

Please accept my very sincere thanks for the handy and beautiful souvenir distributed in the name of yourself and Jacob F. Rentz at the Rotary conference last week. It was very much appreciated.

As a newspaper man of nearly forty years, I want to compliment you on the manner in which you handled the New Castle conference in the news. It was in keeping with the fine manner in which all the arrangements and details of the conference were put over by the New Castle boys.

Very truly yours.

The body of an American woman was found in a bay in Paris and there was nothing on the body to identify it, and a body of an American man was found in Havana, Cuba, with a considerable sum of money on it. Americans sure are careless travelers.

A man reaches the dangerous age when he arrives at the stage where he gets a notion that notwithstanding his bald head and false teeth the flappers are crazy about him.

YOU CAN'T CHOOSE BETWEEN TWO BAD EGGS

When people feel ashamed of their governor or one of their senators, it is common to say they have only themselves to blame. They made their bed; now let them lie in it.

But the people do not deserve all of the blame. As a rule they do about as well as they can. The man they elect is the best man who offers for the place, or at least as capable as the others.

Men who offer their services to the state are a type. Most of them are lawyers—men who became lawyers because as boys they enjoyed making public speeches and dreamed of swaying vast audiences. It was not the prospect of being useful that appealed to them, but the prospect of hearing the clap of hands.

They began by winning some minor office; impressed themselves on the public consciousness by the power of repetition; gained higher and higher office because they had little competition; and at length succeeded in filling the foreground of the political field.

Nearly always they are mediocre men. Politics is their profession. They are elected again and again because they have become a public habit.

The public does not patronize a lawyer because it thinks him the most honorable or most able man in the community, but because it thinks him the best lawyer in the community. The best man is not a candidate. The public must choose from among the professionals in the field.

And the professionals, as a rule, are fourth-rate men. They know the little tricks necessary in making a good impression and winning votes, but they are not intelligent. They do their routine work fairly well, for it requires no great degree of intelligence; but when whim or necessity brings them face to face with the unusual they reveal themselves singularly incompetent and frequently foolish.

At such times they shame the people who elected them and the people say to civilization: "Don't judge us by the antics of this ass. We didn't realize what he was. Your scorn of him is no greater than ours."

The sad part of it is that other sections, though afflicted with similar incompetents, persists in judging us by the imbeciles of the fourth-raters we so indifferently permitted to acquire office.

And there's nothing we can do about it. We would elect our best men if they would offer as candidate, but they won't. Low-grade professionals have held the offices for so long a time that the offices themselves have lost reputation. A high-grade man would need to swallow his pride for the sake of his state before he could persuade himself to become a candidate.

In England a man who has distinguished himself in some business or profession, and has "made his pile", retires from the grind of money-getting and devotes his remaining years to public service. He thinks of it as a duty and the public accepts his service with the feeling that he is paying his debt to society.

If ever again public office becomes an honor it will be sought by first-rate men. Until it becomes an honor first-rate men will not sacrifice themselves or lower themselves to compete with the low-grade professionals to whom public office is merely one way of getting a living.

And until first-rate men offer, the people must continue to choose between evils and hope for the best.—Fountain Tribune.

They Want It. They Get It.
California's Vote.
An Expensive Grave.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

What big men WANT they GET. In New York they wanted an increased subway fare, regardless of a hard and fast contract with the city that put tens of millions into the enterprise.

What big gentlemen WANTED they GOT, by order of the United States court.

Officials will weep and go through various emotions. But the life fish will pay.

President Coolidge has contemplated, with a friendly eye, Mr. Ringling's sea elephant, monster of the deep, that eats 400 pounds of mackerel at one meal, and has nothing to do with politics.

Some cling to the idea that in spite of not choosing, the President will be lured from his retirement plan by another elephant that lives on land, and swallows campaign contributions as readily as the sea elephant swallows fresh mackerel.

Gov. Smith wins in California gathering 26 more votes and probably will be nominated at Houston on the first ballot.

Secretary Hoover, Republican, got 477,000 California votes, about all there were, against Smith 114,961, Reed 48,814, Walsh 37,422.

Gov. Smith's opponents say many California Republicans registered as Democrats and voted for him. That's just what the Governor expected.

A small plot, corner of Wall street and Broadway, across from Trinity Church, sells for $7,000,000, $576 a square foot. At that rate a grave ten feet long, four feet wide, would cost $23,040.

Many a man has paid more than that to be buried, financially, in that neighborhood.

Ask the ghosts that squeak and gibber at the back door of the Stock Exchange when the clock strikes 12 above Trinity's graveyard. And don't gamble.

In Europe, here and there May Day celebrations ended in violence. In America, in New York and elsewhere, many police were ready for hostile May Day demonstrators. But there weren't any. Small crowds attended radical meetings. Nobody showed any deep desire to "throw off his chains" by force and violence.

The wise Bolshevist said it: "You can't do much in a country that owns 24,000,000 automobiles."

Moscow Bolshevism showed a real May Day demonstration. Following the Red Army, well trained and armed, there marched a million men and women, also armed, with guns and bayonets. Armored tanks, armored cars, machine guns, cavalry, a tremendous fighting power, such as the Czars never saw, has been developed by the revolution. More than 15,000,000 is the fighting force of Russia.

Dr. Butler, head of Columbia University, says Aristotle knew all we know about government today. The doctor might add that Aristotle and other Greeks knew one thing that we don't know. They knew enough to take an intelligent interest in government. The learned doctor is not satisfied with democracy "after 300 years of trial" and thinks Protestant Christianity is one of the chief agents of persecution in our age."

All interesting, and if true, important—to a few.

The London Express tells Lindbergh his second ocean flight would be "an anti-climax". The two essentials to great achievements are the are of elimination and the art of avoiding repetition.

Lindbergh's business, however, is the art and science of flying. And to that business he devotes himself. He is not interested in anybody's applause, and would be much obliged if everybody would "cut it out". He's a flier, not a showman.

When the energetic British say they mean to increase their foreign markets, they mean it. They have built boats small enough to go through the Welland Canal, and will send low phosphorous pig iron to Chicago, Milwaukee and other American markets, at $26 a ton delivered, duty paid.

You may say that our steel men should be able to compete with foreign prices. Possibly, but in any case our government should see to it that American workers AND business men are protected from foreign competition.

Florida is Democratic, very, and Democrats usually oppose high tariffs But it all depends.

NARCOTIC DRUGS

I have heard somewhere that a test of insanity patients for their mental soundness is as follows:

The patient is placed in a chamber and water is turned on from a faucet. He is given a mop and pail. If he tries to mop up the water and squeeze it into the pail he is insane, but if he has sense enough to turn off the tap he is sane.

The only way to control narcotic drugs is at the source. You simply have to quit raising an abnormal supply of the materials from which these drugs are made.

Efforts to control the use of narcotics by preventing smuggling and by educating the people not to use them are inefficient.

When people got tired of attempting to control the drink evil by the "regulating" of saloons and the liquor traffic, they decided to put a stop to its manufacture and sale. The only thing that interferes with the success of this plan at present is that a large part of the world today continues to manufacture it.

The only argument against statewide prohibition instead of nation wide is that there is no way to control the influx of liquor from wet states into the dry ones. The supply has to be cut off before anything can be done about it.

The public health service says that there are 100,000 drug addicts in the United States and about 420,000 ounces of drugs are consumed annually. These are for the most part smuggled through New York, although some get in through the Mexican border. Most of the opium is smuggled through Seattle.

The importer sells to wholesale dealers for as low as $11.00 an ounce, but the addict is required to pay $457.50 an ounce, which he purchases in one-grain capsules at $1.00 each.

Whatever the League of Nations is good for or not good for, it ought to function in some way so as to prevent raising opium beyond what is needed for legitimate medicial supplies in any part of the world. As long as it is grown anywhere it can be smuggled into this country.

The lure of extravagant gains motivizes the smuggler, just as it furnishes a motive for the bootlegger. The only way to stop these gains effectually is to stop the supply of material.

Let us quit trying to mop up the water which is constantly flowing from the tap and let us turn off the tap.

The traffic in narcotics and quack medicines is about the most nefarious business in which human being can engage. It is using men's weakness and depravity as a means for making money. Whatever else the government does it should stop that.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

PRESERVE THE GAME.

Lawrence County Hunters used to go South every season and until a few years ago large districts in the South furnished the best of shooting.

Mississippi, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana and the Appalachian Mountain counties of Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and the Carolinas offered bear and deer as well as small game.

Big game began to grow scarce first in these mountain sections. More recently it has been rapidly decreasing throughout the south central states despite the initiation of protective legislation and some advances in law enforcement.

Today there is only an even chance that the conservationists will win out in their struggle to gain the support of at least the obedience to law of these isolated "pot-hunter" woodsmen and lawless hill people whose constant depredations have spelled the destruction of game. But that will not be enough. More noticeably every year the South is becoming industrial in some sections and is being intensively farmed in others. The last natural unstocked refugees of game are contracting where they are not disappearing altogether.

Following upon campaigns to obtain and enforce protective legislation must come now a section-wide movement to preserve game cover and forage for small game as well as for large. At Charlottsville, for example, only 35 years ago students at the University of Virginia could get up their first covey of quail within a mile of Jefferson's famous Rotunda. By the time they had reached what is now Observatory Mountain within a few miles of the old "Lawns" and "Ranges" they frequently put up wild turkey, and a few miles further out toward the Green Mountains or the Rugged Mountains, of which Poe wrote and through which he often wandered, they could come across signs of deer. It is a different story today, not so much in this community as a result of difficulties in enforcing game laws as because of the encroachments of intensive agriculture.

Heavy thickets along the winding country lanes have disappeared. Even those red clay lanes are fast being supplanted by hard surfaced road, over which automobiles carry gunners to invade the once remote retreats of game. Where formerly Scottish broom thrived are pasture lands.

Fence lines, once filled with berry bushes and thick patches of briars, are growing clearer each year. Even the banks of the streams are cleared of their thickets, and the cedar trees are cut down to appease orchadists who insist they harbor through the winter a form of apple blight.

The past winter residents of Virginia witnessed another indication of changing conditions in the life of our wild game. Hundred of thousands of squirrels migrated west. All autumn they behaved strangely, appearing in droves in the very middle of open pastures and ploughed fields in search of food. Blight previously had killed most of the chestnuts. Mask from the oaks and hickories did not

EQUALITY

Rich is he, and poor am I.
And we stood and looked at the summer sky.
And a wild thrush gave us a burst of song
And the blossoms smiled and we walked along.

I thought: I see what the rich man sees.
I feel all things which the rich man feels,
And I share in all which this day reveals.

Beauty of flower and joy of song
Were mine and his as we walked along.
Nor blossom, nor bird, nor summer sky
Knew which was the rich man, he or I.

ARE YOU DISCOURAGED?

Things go wrong occasionally; there is no denying that. In case you ever feel that your affairs have come to about the worst possible pass, and you feel that a jump into the nearest and deepest river is about the next move, please do me a personal favor and read "The Stump Farm."

It isn't fiction nor poetry. Hilda Rose, who wrote it, is a real woman, now living up near Great Slave Lake, in Alberta, Canada. The book is entirely composed of letters written by Hilda Rose to her friends.

This woman was a school teacher in a city. She acquired tuberculosis, and had to go west and stay out of doors. She went to Montana, and there married an old man. She and her husband farmed a stump farm there, high up in the mountains. The farm was just no good, and yielded nothing but sorrow and starvation. But for years they stuck it out. Eventually they moved in into the great wilderness, far in the north, and they are there still.

* * *

I won't attempt to tell you what Hilda Rose went through, with an old and ailing husband to care for and the farm work to do. They adopted two orphans, and the children were taken away from them to save them from starvation. They had a baby of their own, and now he's a big boy of ten or thereabout.

Well, I have never read such a story of courage and fortitude, anywhere, in fact or fancy. I have always loved Hugo's "Toilers of the Sea", because it pictures the nobility of the human spirit, struggling against the greatest forces of nature. It is a wonderful book. But here is a true book that is better—at least for me.

My own parents were pioneers, and I always thought they went through a rather cruel mill. They had drought, tornado, hail, flood, grasshoppers, army worms, webworms, blight, smut, hog cholera, grain rust, San Jose scale, chinch bugs, chicken mites, watermelon lice, dust storms, typhoid fever, smallpox, pneumonia and low prices to contend with, on a Kansas farm. But I would not attempt to compare their struggle with that of frail little Hilda Rose, who weighs 86 pounds and has no fear in her heart.

* * *

Hilda Rose wrote letters to her friends of school days, and one of these friends was so much impressed that she sold the letters to the Atlantic Monthly, sending the proceeds to Mrs. Rose, who had no notion that she was producing literature as a by-product of her struggle. Now these letters, with some others, have been made into a book, and Hilda Rose is an author! This is the book I would like to see selling into 20 editions. If merit and value were measures of book popularity, Hilda Rose could buy Trader Horn and sell him again, without using up any reserve funds.

If you feel that you're somewhat put upon by Fate, read "The Stump Farm" and take heart.

PITTSBURGH May 4—An autopsy today revealed acute alcholosim as the cause of the death of William T. Condon, 38, of Pittsburgh, who was found dead in an abandoned cabaret in Homestead. Baron Von Huenefeld To Be Awarded 50,000 Gold Marks By Electrolux Club

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—Life in New York City is just a series of triumphal parades for Captain Hermann Koehl, Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld and Major James Fitzmaurice, the crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen. Wherever they go, a crowd of thousands of cheering admirers forms and a miniature parade forms in the wake of the flyers' route.

As was the case yesterday, the Bremen's crew has another busy day today. They were to be the guests at a luncheon of the Advertising Club. This evening they will attend a dinner of the Electrolux Company of Sweden at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, and later will go to the theater.

At the Electrolux dinner tonight Baron Von Huenefeld will receive a prize of 50,000 gold marks. Tomorrow afternoon he will watch the geegees run at the Jamaica race track, but will not take the 50,000 gold marks with him.

Fred Melchoir, Junkers pilot, is en route by train to Greenely to condition the Bremen for a flight to Mitchel Field. Before departing he expressed hope the gallant monoplane would rest on United States soil within another week.

At 10:30 tonight, daylight saving time, the fliers are to broadcast their stories of the trip across the Atlantic. Their talks were to go out over WOR and sixteen other stations of the Columbus broadcasting company.

Major Fitzmaurice refused to comment on a report he had cabled his resignation to the Irish Free State as commandant of its aviation corps. The report had him accepting an offer extended by an American aeronautical firm.

Old Mother Earth Is Losing Girlish Figure Is Claimed

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4—Old mother earth is getting out of shape—losing her girlish figure of a couple of billion years ago.

In fact, research by scientists develops that the earth is getting something of a rotund stomach, so to speak, but just why hasn't been definitely discovered.

One explanation advanced by Carnegie Institution is the variable rate of motion of the world on its axis.

IT NEVER PAYS—

To be too positive without a thorough knowledge of the facts.

To believe a thing is as bad as the gossips make it appear.

To judge a town by what you can see from the railroad tracks.

To make a pessimist the chairman of the committee.

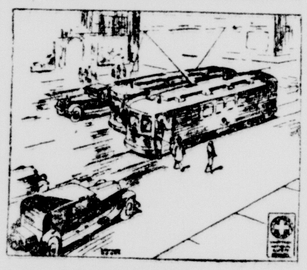
Says Too Many Motorists Try to Hug Street Cars



Passengers alighting from street cars have an absolute right of way over any other vehicle traveling in the same direction, points out S. J. Williams, director public safety division, National Safety Council. Motorists owe these pedestrians their safety until they reach the sidewalk.

When approaching a street car discharging passengers, the automobile should be brought to a stop behind the street car.

In cases where there are safety zones for the boarding or alighting passengers, the motorist should slow down 15 feet or more from the rear of the gates and pass the safety zone at slow speed.

Forgets Past Life

Completely losing her memory, even to forgetting her name, place of residence and occupation, a girl identified as Martha Taylor, of Hollywood, Cal., above, has suffered one of the most remarkable amnesia cases on record. Friends who missed her called at the Los Angeles police station and identified her, but even this has not aided her in recalling anything of her past life. According to doctors a quarrel with her sweetheart, which relatives say she had recently, is responsible for her lapse of memory.

WAR AND NEWS

One-sided news is an aid to war. Willis J. Abbott, contributing editor of the Christian Science Monitor, is right when he says that a constant flow of irritating or provocative news between nations tends to create inharmony, which, in the end, may have serious consequences. Upon the care with which foreign correspondents write their messages depends, to some extent, the continued peace of the world.

LIFTING THE HOOD

In praise of women it is written by somebody interested in the automobile business that women are choosing their motor cars with less assistance from anybody than ever before. It is said they now demand more than appearance and style. They are lifting the hoods and they want to know all about performance. But it ought to be said that if both men and women lifted the hoods less often and quit trying to fix their own cars, the cars would run better. Men and women who have the best luck with automobiles are frequently those who don't know how the wheels go around.

THE CHANCES

Rolvaag, professor at the University of St. Olaf, in Northfield, Minn., came to this country in 1906, an immigrant, without money. Today, as the author of a great book, "Giants in the Earth", he is famous. Standing on the deck of a steamer on the way home from a visit to Norway, he said that the chances for the immigrant coming to America today were as great as when he first came. That is significant. So many young people, native born and alien, feel that pioneering is done. They think the best opportunities have all slipped by. They underestimate the resources and the constantly changing conditions of this world.

WRITING AT ITS BEST

From time to time the author of this column has recommended books of particular interest. For anyone interested in the beautiful art of writing no finer example has come to hand in the last 12 months than "Black Majesty", by John Vandercook. And it's a small book, quickly read. And speaking of majesty, the majesty of simplicity lies in the art of that book.

PITY

Be merciful, but don't pity too much. Pity often has a bad effect on the pitied. To be pitied by others is to learn to pity yourself. And to feel sorry for yourself is a very cheap and useless emotion.

suffice; and in the middle of the winter the squirrels' march West began. They swam the Rivanna river and other streams flowing to the Atlantic and disappeared into the West guided by some strange instinct which bade them find the Alleghanies and seek food upon their slopes.

Unless farmers leave sufficient cover and enough bushes and trees to provide food, all game in these sections likewise must migrate or starve. As the area to which they may flee grows smaller and smaller, they must starve.

No student of the situation seems to have a more comprehensive grasp of the seriousness of it and the one possible remedy for it than John B. Burnham, president of the American Game Protective Association. He is one of the first to point directly to these difficulties of more importance and more far reaching results than protective legislation and restocking can remove.

His plea for Federal and state action to obtain a large number of "artificial sanctuaries" must be heeded or game will continue to decrease save in those state where industry and commerce have had no incentive to make their way West along the streams, and where the soil is too poor for farming. But neither does the game thrive in such sections. The land that raises the best crops also would raise the best food for birds and other game. A part of that land along the fence rows and streams, in private reserves and state sanctuaries must be preserved for them.

The head of the Pennsylvania Game Commission has statistical data indicating that game in this state is worth at market value more than all of the state's domesticated stock, including horses and poultry. Pennsylvania, New York, and New England did not resupply their forests with game without expense. But through the co-operation of farmers south of the line the states of the old Confederacy may do so now for a fraction of what restocking cost them.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE FIRE ALARM

"We are near the humans," continued Father Swift. "That is the best thing about this location. We like them as neighbors better than our own kind. Sometimes it does get rather smoky in here. By the way, boy, do tell your folks not to burn wet wood. It nearly choked us birds to death. We don't mind nice dry wood at all, in fact we rather like it, though we are afraid of sparks. But, of course, having our nest catch fire is one of the chances we take when we make our homes in chimneys."

"Peep! Peep! Cheep! Cheep!" at the word "fire", the nestlings began to twitter in great excitement. "Don't you remember telling us how Uncle Strong-Wing's house caught fire and all our little cousins were burned up except the one that fell down the chimney and broke his neck!" Chirpy talked so fast that his words tumbled over one another.

"Wouldn't it be terrible if anything like that happened to us? That is why I am so anxious to be old enough to fly, so that if ever I saw sparks and began to feel my pin feathers rise on end—as you told us all Swifts feel when there is a fire beneath their nest—I could do something besides falling down the chimney and breaking my neck or staying on the ledge and being burned to a cinder."

Mother Swift flapped her wings distractedly.

"Fire! Fire! Oh, what shall we do? What shall we do?" cried she. Father Swift spoke sternly.

"Now, wife, be calm. You will lose your children if you lose your head. Wait until you are sure there is something to be frightened over before you let yourself be frightened. And even then keep calm! Things are seldom as bad as they seem. Almost always there's a way out of danger if one is clear headed enough to find it. I don't thing there is a fire. There were sparks to be sure. I saw them myself, but I don't notice any now."

Peter had been peering first up the chimney and then down, and now he discovered little bits of paper fluttering in the fireplace. Some one had burned up a few scraps in the grate.

"OH, MOTHER, MOTHER, I SEE SPARKS BROKE IN THE SMALLEST NESTLING RIGHT AT THIS MOMENT 'FIRE! FIRE! THE HOUSE IS ON FIRE!"

He drew a breath of relief and told the birds what it was.

"Well, I am glad to know, boy. Being burned to death is the thing a Swift most fears." Father sighed thankfully. In spite of his words Father Swift had been fearful. The nestlings all cried "Hooray!"

Peter said nothing more but he thought the Swifts were a reckless lot, building their homes in such dangerous places. After all, a chimney was likely to catch fire almost any time unless the folks that lived in the house were very careful. And even if there were never a fire, the smoke must be disagreeable. How did the Swifts stand it? But he thought he would not ask; after all, where the Swifts lived, and why, was none of his business.

Elephants Will Perform Here

To Share Program Of Wallace-Hagenbeck Circus On May 16

Three herds of ponderous brutes, said to be the best trained elephants in the business, will make their appearance here on May 16th, when the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus comes for afternoon and night exhibitions.

Cheerful Gardner, master elephant trainer spent many long hours during the winter months instructing the mammoth pachyderms in the latest dance steps. The "bulls" are as clever dancers as any four-legged animal and their terpichorean efforts include everything from the tango to the black bottom.

The elephants are not the only highly educated beasts with Hagenbeck-Wallace, as this famous circus has long been noted for the excellence of its wild and domestic animal acts. Clyde Beatty, a trainer barely out of his teens, will offer a display of over 30 lions and tigers, the largest group to ever work in a circus arena.

A special feature of more or less interest will be the taking of motion pictures on the circus grounds from 11 a. m. until 2 p. m., and these pictures will be shown in local theatres at a very early date, and should you desire to be among those on the screen arrange your hours so that you may be there.

A downtown ticket office has been established at Love and Megowns, where you may avoid the usual circus crowd and still purchase tickets the day of the show at the same prices as on the grounds.

WHAT HE COULD DO

Twenty children from one of the London slums had been entertained to a charity dinner, and afterwards each was asked to sing or give a recitation.

All went well until it came to Billy Potts' turn.

"Come, now, Billy; we should like to hear you recite or sing," said a lady encouragingly. After a moment's pause, the young guest answered:

"I can't sing, lady."

"Then what can you do?"

"Well," replied Billy, getting up and preparing to take off his jacket, "I aren't used ter singing, but I'll fight any of other kids in the room!"

Missing Man Is Being Sought

ERIE, Pa., May 4.—Missing since April 30, Herman E. Sahli, 37, Wesleyville, is being sought by the police.

His wife is unable to account for his sudden and mysterious disappearance, sho told Chief Alexander, of the Wesleyville police. All of his favorite haunts have been searched by Alexander and failing to find any trace of the man, the Wesleyville chief has enlisted the aid of city and state police.

Sahli, a carpenter by trade, is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 147 pounds. When he left home he was wearing a dark checked suit, black oxfords, a black overcoat and a brown slouch hat.

Explorer's Pole Data Is Praised

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent for Sentral Press and New Castle News

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The north and south polar zones holds secrets of so many different sorts, each of especial interest to some particular group of scientists, that it's hard to tell just which group waits with the keenest curiosity of Capt. George H. Wilkins' arctic visit.

Wilkins seems to be a marvel as a sub-zero flyer.

Next after gravity, Jack Frost—in his various manifestations—is about the meanest influence the chap at the joy stick has to reckon with. If the captain has hit on an improved system of defying him, his brother airmen are mighty anxious to know it. It would mean a lot to nothern aeronautics—not only right over the pole but away down to the 45th parallel.

* * *

The weather sharks are on tip-toe, too.

Most of them have always considered the Arctic the hemisphere's weather factory. They haven't heard half enough about it yet from earlier explovers. Today they're all ears for Wilkins' account of his observations.

* * *

It would be idle to deny that there's a certain amount of disappointment in scientific circles at the absence of large land bodies in the north pole's vicinity.

Ice water hasn't much appeal to the naturalist, the botanist or the geologist. About all these folks can do is to hope for better things from the antartic, where there's solid dirt to support a little animal and plant life, and to be dug in—for mineral and oil deposits, fossils and such stuff.

* * *

It's taken for granted that Wilkins had instruments with him, to show how the pole's neighborhood affects the compass.

Students of terrestrial magnetism have received useful hints on this subject from Perry, Byrd and Amundsen, but they can make use of plenty more—and still leave navigators and surveyors a good many problems to puzzle over.

* * *

Wilkins' story jolted the oceanographers.

The latter had figured that there WAS considerable land in the far north. They judged so, from the way the tides act.

Now they must recast their calculations—unless, indeed, it was very shoal water the captain flew over. That might explain the tides' behavior. The oceanographers wish a few soundings could have been taken.

* * *

The investigator reaches in and fishes out some package of information that even he can't recognize as having any market value.

And the next thing he knows, it dawns on him that he's discovered some such thing as radio, the world's transformed overnight, and he's as much astonished as anybody.

Who knows if it won't be that way with Capt. Wilkins?

Seniors To Take Carnegie Tests

Seventy-Five At Westminster To Spend Two Days On Educational Tests

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 4.—Seventy-five Westminster seniors will drop their class work on Monday and Tuesday of next week so that they may spend their full time on Carnegie Foundation tests. These tests are generally educational acheivement tests, objective in type, and given under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation. The committee of faculty members at Westminster that is directing the tests is composed of Dr. C. A. Freeman, Dr. J. A. Swindler, Prof. J. A. Short and Prof. J. D. Lawther.

It will take four, three-hour periods for the whole of the examinations to be given, and co-incident with this activity at Westminster all the high school, college and university seniors in Pennsylvania will pass through the same experience.

The tests will cover every field of learning, physical and social, in an attempt to test the student's entire scope of knowledge. Each paper will be annoymous, the student being known by number rather than by name. It is also possible that the Westminster faculty will take parts or the whole of the tests.

The Carnegie Foundation present the purpose of this activity in the following way: "To learn what the bachelor degree, representing an 8 year educational course in Pennsylvania, amounts to in terms—first, of class or available ideas, and second, of ability to discriminate exactly among ideas and to use them accurately." Those are the main reasons for acquiring an education and the Foundation is interested in finding if education is living up to that standard.

Prohibition Is Scored By Clark

Pittsburgh Public Safety Director Scores Prohibition As Favoring Rich Man

WOULD WELCOME BIG CLEANUP

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 4.—"Prohibition is a joke—prohibition for the poor man, whiskey for the rich, that is what prohibition is." With these words, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, of Pittsburgh, today was on record as opposing prohibition as class legislation.

Speaking before the members of the North Side Chamber of Commerce the official scored the Ministerial Associations demanding a cleanup of Pittsburgh and declared that he would welcome the Federal grand jury investigation which has been asked by more than 5,000 members of nearly 50 churches.

Turning his fire on Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, Clark said that while the police had arrested 24,000 persons for drunkenness last year the prohibition force had made only 7,000 arrests.

"The police department has other duties to perform besides raiding," he said. "The prohibition department was organized to uphold the Federal prohibition law, that is its duty, let it do it.

While expressing his belief that prohibition is a failure, Clark emphatically denied that he had ever refused to do his utmost for enforcement and promised to enforce the Snyder Act.

Husband To Face Court Trial In Death Of Wife

(International News Service)

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 4.—John Sukeena of Minersville will be placed on trial next week on charges of murder in connection with the death of his wife, who was recently found shot to death in their home. A note pinned to her dress indicated that she had taken her own life.

Defense attorneys said the note found on the woman's body would be the basis of their case. The note was said by police to have stated that Mrs. Sukeena shot and killed herself because of marital troubles, but it was said that there were indications that the note might have been forged.

Two negroes, from the first Illinois district, Chicago, have been after the Republican nomination for the congressional seat made vacant by the death of Representative M. B. Madden. Oscar DePriest, above, snapped while making a speech, former county commissioner, has been nominated by the congressional committee of the district. William Harrison, below, assistant attorney general of Illinois, has announced that if the nomination of DePriest is upheld by the court and election officials he will become an independent candidate. The first Illinois district is four-fifths negro in population. Madden has represented it in congress for the last quarter century.

Two Y. W. Tennis Matches Played Thursday Evening

Mrs. E. L. Walls And Miss Myrtle Burnett Win Tennis Matches

Two more tennis matches were played off Thursday evening in the Y. W. C. A. indoor tennis tournament. Contestants were Mrs. E. L. Walls versus Miss Lena Johns, and Miss Myrtle Burnett versus Tessie Travers.

The players of the first match were of more equal playing ability than those of the second match. Therefore their match, containing some very exciting and continued volleys, was of greater interest to the onlookers. Mrs. Walls played an unusually good game and with a little more practice Miss Johns will be a first class player.

Miss Burnett employs a very speedy serve and well placed returned balls which indicate that she has fine chances to be a runner up for the championship. Miss Travers played well and would make a better showing against an opponent nearer her own skill. Scores as follows:

First match—First set, 6-4, Walls; second set, 6-1, Walls.

Second match—First set, 6-0, Burnett; second set, 6-1, Burnett.

This evening at 8 o'clock Mrs. Eileen Stone and Miss Kathryn Newbury will play off. Mrs. Stone is last year's champion. Miss Newbury is a player of no mean ability and the match promises to be good.

Saturday at 1 o'clock two matches will be played off. Contestants are Dee Rech versus Leona Sankey, and Lilah Allen versus Leola Johnson.

There will no matches on Monday evening of next week.

Brothers Improvise Carrier And Sister's Injured Leg Is Set

(International News Service)

STANLEY, Va., May 4.—Resourcefulness is a part of life in the Blue Ridge mountains.

The cave children, Tommy, 12, Nancy, 10, and Johnny, 15, were back in their mountain home today after a tortuous ten mile trip down the mountain and back again.

Nancy had broken her leg. There was no doctor and no means of conveyance to a doctor, so the brothers made a "saddle" by locking their hands together and "toted" Nancy down the side of the mountain. The leg was set by a local doctor and despite advice to leave her here the boys "toted" her back home again in the same fashion.

Scientists Say Men Lived Here Million Years

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4. — Man probably has lived on the American continent upwards of a million years, according to recent discoveries made by Smithsonian Institute scientists.

Information indicating that man may have come to America in the Pleistocene or Glacial Age, has been obtained by a Smithsonian party working at Melbourne, Fla., under the direction of Dr. J. W. Gidley.

"Controversy as to the age of man in America has raged for decades and has been particularly active in recent years," said Dr. Gidley. "Additional facts pointing to man's early residence, obtained during the work just concluded, substantiates the firm belief of myself and other paleontolgists that man really existed on this continent during the Pleistocene."

Remains Found

In 1916, according to a statement issued by Smithsonian, Dr. E. H. Sellards, at time state geologist of Florida discovered human remains at Verno, Fla., associated with fossil bones of animals known only in the Pleistocene. Later an amateur collector made discoveries of similar remains at Melbourne and in 1925 the Amherst-Smithsonian expedition found a human skull in what were considered Pleistocene beds.

There were three principal geological strata in the area in question. The bones at Vero and Melbourne were found in the middle stratum in beds definitely considered of the Pleistocene. The question whether these bones were deposited in the middle stratu at a later date or whether they were deposited there originally was studied carefully by the new expedition. Gidley found to his own satisfaction that the human bones were placed in the Pleistocene stratum as it was being formed.

Digging into the Pleistocene stratum the expedition found such remains of man as bone awls, arrow heads and pieces of pottery. The animal remains found near appeared to have been of the late Glacial Age. The investigators considered that it would have been impossible for the human relics to have been pushed down from higher strata without leaving a trace.

Fixing The Time

"The human skull which we found at Melbourne in 1925 in the Ice Age strata was imbedded solidly in the sand," Gidley said. "We now say positively, therefore, that the human remains belong in this strata and they could not have been inserted later.

"Further, to give strong suport of these conclusions we found an arrow head made by human hands near the middle of the Ice Age stratum and a few feet from the fossel bones of a Pleistocene mastodon."

The same general geological conditions were found to exist at Melbourne and Vero.

According to Smithsonian experts the Pleistocene age existed from 100,000 to 1,000,00 years ago.

Woman Is Witness At Paris Beheading; Was Victim's Lawyer

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 4.—For the first time a woman has been a witness at the guillotine in France. Not even newspaper women have been allowed this privilege. Madame Erlich, "Maitre Erlich," as she is known about the Palace of Justice, served as lawyer for two Poles recently condemned to death.

"Unfortunately I could not win their freedom for them," she said after the trail, "but I shall follow them to the guillotine, for I can speak their language and may be able to help them at the moment of expiation."

On the fatal day she arose at four o'clock, dressed all in black and hurried to the place of execution. One of the Poles kissed her hand and thanked her for what she had done to try to save them. Madame Erlich remained calm and silent until all was over.

Civilized World Faces Menace In Conditions Which Exist In India

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 4.—Condition which are "a menace to civilization" exist in India today, according to A. A. Purcell, noted British labor leader, who has just returned from a tour of that country.

Purcell visited India as an official delegate from the British Trade union organization there and study housing, social and working conditions.

He paints a vivid picture of the toiling masses in Britain's Indian Empire, and comes to the conclusion that conditions there give cause for great alarm.

"The conditions under which Indian workers are clothed, housed and fed alarmed us," says Purcell in a report presented to the T. U. C. "It is a reflection on civilization that there should be such masses of people dying off like flies."

Architects Work On New City Hall For New Haven, Conn.

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 4. — A dozen architects are working on plans for a costly city hall here to replace a sixty-year-old brown stone pile that has sheltered New Haven's municiple affairs adequately in the past.

Dean Everette V. Meeks, of Yale School of fine arts, who will be the final arbiter of plans, has six New Haven and six New York architects lined up with sketches and several of these workers will be commissioned to draw plans.

The structure will front New Haven Green, facing Yale University two unobstructed blocks away.

Florida Banana War Is Raging

(International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla., May 4—Yes, they have bananas in Miami and a grand scale. In fact importing companies have sent generous shipment in from Cuba lately that they have virtually precipitated a "banana war" in which the public is buying the banana at a ridiculously lower price than ever before. The war, however, is confined to south Florida as the companies have a "gentleman's agreement" with the United Fruit growers interests not to sell bananas north of Fort Pierce.

No New 4 Mill Tax Is Created

Impression Of New State Assessment On Personal Property Incorrect

SAME TAXATION BASIS REMAINS

Recently there has been some discussion over the new secretary of revenue who will be appointed by the governor some time after November 1, 1928, and the department of revenue which will become a part of the state government after May 1, 1929. Along with the discussion of the new position there has been comment over the four mill tax which he is to collect and the impression has gone abroad that there is a new four mill tax on all personal property to be levied on and after that date.

The impression is not correct. The General Assembly of 1927 did not pass any law which added a four mill tax on personal property, but it did create the Department of Revenue and propided for a Secretary of Revenue, who will have supervision over the assessment and collection of the four mill tax on all intangible personal property for county purposes.

Same Old Tax.

The four mill tax referred to is the same tax which has been in force for many years. The revision of 1913 is the act under which we are now operating but the four mill tax is many years older than that. It provided that a four mill tax should be levied on such personal property as mortgages, bonds, money at interest and the like.

This tax has not always been collected. Where a person was dishonest or neglectful the tax was overlooked and as a result the state has lost thousands of dollars. Those people who made full returns of all taxable property included their bank accounts or mortgages or bonds in the list of taxable property and the result was an inequitable condition.

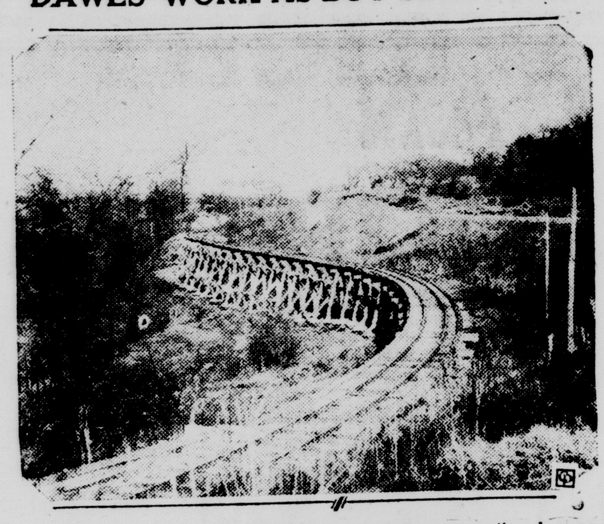
The new law is a part of the Revised Administrative Code. The Department of Revenue is to have supervision of the assessment and collection of this same old four mill tax. While there has been nothing done in the way of organizing the department it is assumed that the Secretary of Revenue will do something similar to that which has been done by the auditor-general in the collection of inheritance and gasoline taxes, appoint deputies in various counties for the purpose of seeing that the tax is collected.

It will mean increase in state revenues for the reason that many people have evaded this tax heretofore. Because such moneys are for county purposes it will give the citizens of every county more revenue for the county work.

However the new law does not put any new tax laws on the books, does not increase anybodys taxes a dime over what they have always paid or at least should have paid if they made proper return. For the taxpayer who has always done this there is no change, for the tax evader who has been failing to return such intangible personal property for tax purposes, it will mean the payment of what he has owed.

Negotiations were opened the other day by Secretary Kellogg looking toward an arbitration treaty with Turkey. Apparently we are at last on speaking terms with the unspeakable Turk.—Lansing State Journal.

DAWES' WORK AS BOY SURVEYOR



View of a trestle on the Ohio River and Western railroad, near Bellaire, O., on which Vice President Charles G. Dawes worked as a surveyor years ago. Investigation of the narrow gauge road by the Ohio utilities committee has been begun, the railroad seeking to abandon the road because of its failure to pay dividends. Originally this trestle was straight, but a landslide converted it into a letter "S." So perfect was the survey made that the structure has remained intact, without repair, for more than 20 years.

Dizzy Headaches Gone And Pains Have Left Back

New Castle Lady Also Free Of Stomach Trouble, After Using Ten Herbs

"Ten Herbs gave me satisfactory relief from stomach and liver disorders, dizzy headaches and pains in the back," was the statement of Mrs. John Yoho, 211 West Sheridan avenue, New Castle, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington street, this city, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of people.

MRS. JOHN YOHO

"Before taking Ten Herbs, I suffered with stomach trouble," Mrs. Yoho continued. "At times, my appetite was very poor, and what little I ate distressed me. Gas would form and cause me considerable trouble. Dizzy headaches would come on me. My kidneys were not working properly, as there were severe pains across my back. I was constipated nearly all the time. My liver was badly disordered. My tongue was coated, and black spots would come before my eyes.

"I was advised to try Ten Herbs, which I did. I have used three bottles, and there has been a wonderful improvement in my health. Stomach trouble has been relieved—there is no more gas. My liver is in good condition. I do not get dizzy any more, or have black spots before my eyes. Constipation has been corrected. My kidneys seem to be in good condition, and the pains are gone from my back. I no longer have severe headaches. My appetite is splendid, and my nerves are quiet. Ten Herbs benefited me so much, that I shall always recommend it to persons who suffer as I did."

Many in this section are daily reporting to the Ten Herbs Man that the action of Ten Herbs on the inner system is little short of amazing. The wonderful natural ingredients of this celebrated medicine benefit and invigorate the sluggish stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, usually making one feel better in every way.

The Ten Herbs Man is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington street, this city, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will be glad to tell you how to take it to get the best results. Free sample given.

Final Vote On Tax Reduction Expected Soon

Senator Smoot Agrees To Keep Measure Before Senate Until Finally Passed

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Although at war over the limit of tax reduction in a drive to force a final vote on the new tax reduction bill by the senate within a week, Senator Smoot (R) of Utah, leading the administration forces, announced he would keep the bill before the senate continuously until the vote was reached.

Senator Simmons (D) of North Carolina, the minority's finance leader, agreed to this plan and predicted a final vote would be reached by the middle of next week.

The two parties are in sharp disagreement over the amount of reduction. The Democrats held out for a $336,000,000 slash while the Republican plan called for only a $203,000,000 reduction. Administration leaders said conditions of the treasury would not permit a great reduction.

Another difference is that Italy is excited about bomb plots while Chicago has got used to such things.—The Indianapolis News.

Airport Sign On Court House

"New Castle" And Landing Field Directions On Court House Roof

Once an aviator hovering this city and seeking to determine what place it is, now sees the roof of the county court house, he will know just where he is and also that there is an airport here.

On the roof of the main court house this morning, there was painted a sign, the name New Castle appearing in large letters, discernable at a considerable distance up in the sky, not only because of the size of the lettering but also on account of the elevation of the court house.

The sign was put up by Clifford James and Ernest McCracken. The lettering is on the court street side of the roof and is in white. The letters are six feet in height and are three feet wide.

The actual lettering of the sign is "New Castle Airport" and has an arrow pointing in an eastwardly direction toward the Harlansburg road airport.

Gay Baltimore Party Ends In Shooting Fray

(International News Service)

BALTIMORE, Md., May 4.—A gay party at a night club early today resulted in the shooting of one New York aviator and the arrest of three of his flying companions. The shots were fired by a policeman to summon aid.

Frank Callahan, 29, of Brooklyn, is in a hospital with a bullet in his side, while Robert Barrett, 24, Howard Beane, 34, and Fred Brand, 37, all of Brooklyn, are held in jail. Paul Eckett, 60, manager of Sherry's Night club, was also arrested.

Callahan and his companions brought two planes here from Curtiss field yesterday for use by the Chesapeake Aircraft Corporation. They went on a party to Sherry's. Barrett engaged in an argument with a taxi driver which became so heated that policeman Fred Singer rushed to the scene. A general melee followed.

Singer declared he whipped out his pistol and fired into the air to summon aid. The bullet hit Callahan.

Child Defends Self On Boulder Power Project

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Richard Washburn Child, ex-Ambassador to Italy, in a letter to the Federal Trade Commission, today defended his services in preparing data for a book attacking Boulder Dam. He received $7,500 from the joint committee of National Utility Associations.

At the same time he criticised Boulder Dam legislation as "a disastrous experiment in government ownership."

Child told the commission that as a member of the bar it was his privilege to accept retainers which "I consider worthy."

"Let me make it clear that I never signed my name to any expression not my own, nor do I receive any undisclosed fees for any personal expression of mine," said Child. "Is that sufficiently specific?"

About 7000 Children Immunized In County

Toxin Anti-Toxin Treatment For Diphtheria Given Many School Children

Immunization against diphtheria of about 7000 children in the schools of Lawrence county has just been completed, according to Dr. H. C. Harper, Lawrence county medical director, who states that they have just completed the immunization of about 3500 children in the country districts and that about the same number have taken the treatment in the city.

Under the direction of the medical director of the county and district health officers, this treatment has been given free to school children after the consent of the parents has been obtained. The toxin anti-toxin treatment is furnished by the state department of health.

The county medical director is highly pleased with the way parents have cooperated in having their children protected from this terrible disease and believes that when the people are converted to the value of the preventative that there will be 100 per cent immunization of all school children.

Dr. Harper says that of all the thousands of children that have been inoculated during the past year, not one child has lost an hour of time in school nor even been made sick enough to inconvenience them in their school work, in spite of many rumors to the contrary and false reports that have been given.

Scarlet Fever Not Spreading

No New Developments In Disease At Hickory Heighs School

Three families have been quarantined within the last two weeks as a result of the recent outbreak o scarlet fever occurring among children attending the Hickory Heights school in Hickory township just east of Croton district of New Castle, according to report of Dr. H. C. Harper, County Medical Director.

Dr. Harper reports that he personally and accompanied by the district health officers visited 18 homes of the district in order to ferret out various rumors and to check up o children that have been absent fro school since it reopened on May 2. They found out that only one case has developed as a result of contact with the original case.

The County Medical Director wishes to impress upon patrons of the school and of the people in general that should any child develop a slight sore throat or a rash to any degree, they should report the matter immediatetly to the district health officer whether a physician has been called or not. This is required by law and should any parent upon investigation be discovered to have any such child sick and not to have reported it, they will be prosecuted immediately.

Any community, says Dr. Harper, can be just as free from such diseases as they show respect for the law for the control of communicable and contagious diseases. These outbreaks of disease that occur can be traced in every instance to the neglect of some person guilty of not reporting the present of a disease in the home.

The County Medical Director is determined to break up the habit of people who bootleg disease into a community because of the fear of having the home quarantined.

Decision Is Upheld By Superior Court In Insurance Case

Appeal Is Dismissed In Case Of Hallie Johnson Against Mercantile Company

In the case of Hallie Johnson, use of the Manufacturers Finance Company against the Mercantile Iusurance Company, an opinion of the superior court was received at the prothonotary's office this morning in which Judge Hildebrand's order is affirmed and the appeal dismissed. The appeal complained of the discharge of a rule for judgment for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense.

The case was one in which an automobile belong to plaintiffs was insured by the defendant company for $1357. It was burned up in a fire which destroyed a garage in which it was kept at 125 Lawrence street.

The insurance company admitted that the insurance was taken out that the policy read "Hallie Johnson and the Manufacturers Finance Company" as their interest appeared. After the fire the company claimed Hallie Johnson didn't have any interest as she was back in her payments to the finance company. It was further claimed that the auto was not a total loss and that it was not worth the amount it was insured for at the time it was burned.

Hallie Johnson disputed this claim and her contention that she is interested in the policy is upheld by the court's opinion.

Deserted Village Folks Never Heard Of Late World War

Strange Life Of 500 Europeans In South African Colony Is Brought To Light

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 4.—Details of the strange life of a colony of 500 Europeans in the isolated Riverdale district of South Africa, who never heard of motor cars, radio nor airplanes and who do not know there was such a thing as the world war, were received here today from Johannesburg.

The colony has lived for nearly a century in their out of the way homes. Due to the absence of roads strangers have not penetrated into the strange village. Anyhow, the presence of strangers was resented.

These people have practically no communication with the outside world They live on the produce of their gardens and wild game, while rye is burned to serve as coffee. Whole families exist on an expenditure of less than five cents a day. Many of the people cannot read or write, having no use for these accomplishments.

The colonists dwell in mud-shacks identical with those erected when venturesome pioneers established the colony 100 years ago. The people are content to live by themselves and do not desire to mix with outsiders.

Beats Girl Up, Shoots Self And Then They Marry

Way To Win Follies Girl Is To Beat Her Up Then Stage Shooting

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—The way to woo a Follies beauty is to give her a good beating and then shoot yourself.

This is the tip from Elias Brody, Hungarian artist, who is back in New York today with "Kittens" Leightmer, former Follies star and Bryn Mawr graduate, as Mrs. Brody.

The two met in Paris and "Kittens" was at that time engaged to Henry Clews, III, grandson of a famous banker. Brody promptly fell in love and Miss Leightmer, it is said, didn't discourage him.

Then, one evening Elias suddenly became wildly jealous, after the manner of an artist. He stormed up to Miss Leightmer's fashionable Parisian apartment, broke through the door, and proceeded to give "Kittens" a good beating, she admitted.

Despondent over the cruelty of life, Brody then picked up a pistol and shot himself twice, both bullets entering beneath his heart. In her anxiety and remorse, and occupied with the business of nursing Elias back to health, "Kittens" forgot all about the beating. She also forgot Henry Clews, III.

CATARRH IS LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT

Comes Upon Victims Unsuspected; How World's Tonic Banishes Catarrh

Catarrh comes upon its victims like a thief in the night. Often its presence is not even suspected until it has secured a firm hold. Even then many people do not secure medical help, especially if the disease has not progressed to a point where it causes acute distress, and the ailments continue to gain headway.

The time to fight catarrh is right now. It should not be put off until tomorrow. If left alone the disease may progress to a point where holes are eaten in the roof of the mouth, facial bones decay, resulting in large cavities over which the flesh sinks in, or consumption and death may result. Sooner or later serious consequences nearly always come from catarrh.

Many catarrh sufferers are highly praising World's Tonic for the good it has done them. World's Tonic is a systemic treatment for catarrh and has brought astonishing results in many cases. It relieves distress in the nose and throat almost at once and stops the spread of catarrh, and it also fights catarrh in every source, within the system, and is designed to relieve the system of catarrh entirely.

Chicago Plans Heavy Program For Scientists

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, May 4.—One of the most noteworthy gatherings of scientists of the year will take place at Northwestern university in Evanston from July 23 to August 18.

The Institute of Chemistry of the American Chemical society, in its second annual meeting, will consider fascinating and fundamental questions as the processes of formation and maintenance of life, public health, farm relief through science and national defense.

Twenty-eight conferences, in which scientists from the universities and the industries will describe developments in major fields of chemistry, will feature the 1928 work of the institute.

According to the plan the institute will function as an international clearing house of knowledge in chemical science. The Evanston gathering will attract hundreds of chemists, both men and women, from the United states, Canada and Europe.

General Problems.

During the week of July 23 seven conferences will be held on the general problem of developing new markets other than food for agricultural products by means of chemistry. A second group of seven conferences during the week of July 30 will take up fertilizer, catalysis, hydrogenation, organic chemistry, antiovidants and the utilization of energy of high intensity in producing chemical reactions.

Health, the use of physics and chemistry in studying life processes, chemical hazards, petroleum, resins, lacquers and paints will be taken up at several conferences in the week of August 6. Sanitation, the packing industry, leather, chemical literature, ceramics, alloys and chemistry and other sciences in national defense will be discussed at a series of seven conferences in the concluding week of August 13.

"The chemists will discuss ways in which they can provide farm relief by developing new markets for agricultural products," said a statement issued by the national society. "One aim will be to wipe out wastes, proper conversion of which, it is estimated, would mean an annual gain in the value of farm products of $3,000,000,000.

Foreign Delegates.

Among the foreign scientists who will come to America to participate in the institute is Sir James Colquhoun Irvine, principal and vice chancellor of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. Sir James, internationally known as an investigator, will deliver lectures both to professional chemists and to laymen.

The Chicago institute is one of the three big national gatherings planned by the American Chemical society for the year. The 75th meeting of the society will take place at St. Louis April 16 to 20 and the 76th meeting at Swampscott, Mass., under auspices of the Boston section, September 10 to 14.

About 2,000 men of science are expected to attend each of the gatherings.

Charlemagne Tower Crumbles To Dust After 1128 Years

(International News Service)

TOURS, May 4.—The celebrated "Tour Charlemagne" has finally yielded to age. The inhabitants of the well-known chateau center watched it crumble away one night, just one thousand one hundred and twenty-eight years after the day it was built.

Constant weathering had made great cracks and loosened the stones. After many repairs all hope of saving the tower was abandoned, and notice was given for those living in the immediate neighborhood to vacate. The crash was expected.

The falling of the tower marks the disappearance of the famous Abbey St. Martin, one of the glories of the Dark Ages. Luitgard, one the wives of the famous Charlemagne, is said to have been buried beneath it. Two hundred monks once lived in the dormitories. Twenty at a time they chanted in the chapel all day long, changing every hour. They became immensely wealthy but later lost all the gold and rare jewels which filled their coffers. After the religious wars, their prosperity waned, but the Abbey survived until the Revolution.

It seems that the Chinese who used to do your laundry are now cleaning up in the restaurant field.

Urges Vanity Case For Insane Women; Bar Straight Jacket

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 4.—The vanity case should supercede the straight-jacket in asylums for women, according to a well-known French doctor who believes that the powder-puff, the lipstick and the eyebrow pencil can work wonders in the cases of many insane women.

"Coquettry," contends the doctor, "which is really nothing more than extreme pride in one's appearance makes a woman rise many degrees in her own esteem, produces good humor and assurance.

"By encouraging the demented to make themselves as beautiful as possible, they are unconsciously given confidence and dignity. The woman who curls her hair and polishes her nails becomes a real woman for herself and little it matters to her if onlookers find she is not quite up to their standard of mentality. By means of a little powder or rouge she finds again a bit of her former self and her mind, if only for a bare instant, meets other people on a fair plane."

Experience has proved time and again that by treating the mad person like a man without brains, he goes deeper and deeper into his folly. Suggest that he is so different from the average person and he will try to act like one. Offer him a little refinement and his sick mind will become more cheerful.

"Make-up should be the mad woman's first aid service kit," concludes the doctor, "but I do not mean by this, of course that its use should be strictly confined to this unfortunate class. However, many very healthy-minded creatures make themselves up like foolish women, and are certainly none the more beautiful for it."

Kansas Farmers Try New Way To Supply Rabbits For Market

(International News Service)

SPIVEY, Kansas, May 4.—So great is the eastern demand for rabbit meat, and for the fur of the small animals, that farmers in this section of the country have developed something more than a hobby of catching and killing them. In their wholesale slaughter, a two-fold purpose is gained; A huge demand is supplied, and much crop damage eliminated, for the "cotton tails" are a constant menace to many varieties of plant life.

John Johnson, farmer, near here, began several years ago shipping rabbit meat to market. Shot guns were used to kill them at first, but this method proved entirely too expensive. Then a small net was employed for catching the animals. The net grew in size until now Johnson owns a net large enough to circle an eight acre tract.

Estimated cost of the net is $2,500. The obstacle is made of heavy cord and reaches three feet from the ground, with steel stakes every few feet to hold it up.

After the trap is set, a half dozen men on horse ride through the fields dragging a long chain which scares the rabbits into the net. Sometimes the bunnies hurl themselves into the tight cords with such force as to break their necks. The rabbits are prepared on the ground and placed into crates ready for shipment.

Farmers, generally, are glad to have the animals exterminated for when they are plentiful they often do as much damage to crops as all insect life put together.

Extend Grove Street Across Neshannock

Another Ordinance Places Lawrence Street Back On Original Lines

Councilmen today introduced two ordinances in city council at their regular Friday meeting, one extending Grove street betwen South Mill to South Mercer street and the second re-locating Lawrence street, between South Mercer and South Mill street. The ordinances relate to the proposed construction of a bridge across the Neshannock creek.

The Grove street extension ordinance provides for the location of the thoroughfare through the ore pile of the Carnegie Steel company. However the company does not desire a bridge located at this point and the bill simply expresses the desire of the city for this location.

The second ordinance or the bill relocating Lawrence street puts the lines of the thoroughfare where they are now, as a former ordinance made its location south of the present lines. Should the county commissioners decide to build a bridge it is probable it will be built here, although the site south is desired by the city.

The two ordinances provide the city with two streets which connect South Mill and South Mercer streets.

12,000 WILL RUN IN WEST VIRGINIA

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 4.—More than 12,000 men and women will seek office at the West Virginia primaries on May 29, George M. Sharp, secretary of state, estimated.

These candidates, the secretary said, will include citizens seeking election to National, state, county and district offices.

Sharp's estimate was based upon the fact that before the campaign opened he prepared and sent to circuit clerks 12,000 candidacy forms. Nearly all of the circuit clerks have reported, he said, that their supplies of certificates have been exhausted and several have asked for new supplies.

Inhale Oxygen To Cure Airsickness

THE HAGUE, May 4.—The Dutch air lines are trying out a new cure for air sickness. It involves the inhalation of oxygen before the flight commences, and it is estimated that an inhalation of six minutes will prevent sickness for about six hours. No inconvenience or discomfort is experienced by those undergoing the treatment.

If the preventative brings good results, the planes will abolish the "paper-sack" idea.

SENATORS WATCH CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Here are senators who compose a new committee to keep an eye on campaign funds. They have power to summon and investigate. Appointed by Vice President Dawes upon the passage of a resolution by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, three are Republicans—Senators Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, chairman; W. H. McMaster, of South Dakota, and Porter H. Dale, of Vermont; and two are Democrats—Senators Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Sam G. Bratton, of New Mexico

Three Tri-Motored Planes Plan Tour Of United States

Limousine Airplanes With All Modern Comforts To Visit Forty Cities

Will Start In New York Early Next Week And Finish Tour In California

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—Three huge tri-motored limousine airplanes, built for comfort and speed, will leave New York early next week on an aerial "goodwill tour" across the continent to California, making stops at forty leading cities.

The object of the tour is to call attention to California and the strides it is making in aviation.

In the flight from New York to California the planes are to be occupied by prominent California business men. They are W. D. Longyear, treasurer of the American Bankers' Association and vice-president of the Security Trust & Savings Bank of Los Angeles; Henry C. Maier, vice-president of the Bank of Italy who was active in the establishment of a school for aeronautics at Stanford University, and C. Zook Sutton, a manufacturer.

Each ship will also carry two pilots, an official of the Western Air Express and three newspaper representatives. At times motion picture and newspaper photographers will be held at the various cities enroute in cooperation with various chambers of commerce.

The planes, when they reach California, will be used on a new passenger air line between San Francisco and Los Angeles which the Western Air Express will operate.

The schedule for the transcontinental tour calls for stops at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

He pointed out the importance of the farmer in the general scheme of affairs. The matter of farm relief, as he viewed it, is not a problem for the nation, but for the farmer himself, and relief must come from the farm itself and cannot be a matter of legislation.

NO NEED FOR HASTE

Old Zeb was whitewashing his barn with a brush that had very few bristles left in it. The squire happened to pass and said, "Why don't you get a new brush with more bristles in it, Zeb?"

"What for, squire?" asked the old man.

"What for?" answered the squire. "Why, man, if you had the proper brush you could do twice as much work."

"Mebbe so, judge, mebbe so," responded the old chap. "Only you see, I ain't got twice as much work to do."—From the Dallas Hurry Back News.

Foresters Prepare For Tourist Rush To State Camp Sites

HARRISBURG, May 4.—Reports from district foresters throughout the State indicate that the trend of campers and tourists is especially heavy this spring and that 1928 will be the record year for recreation on the Pennsylvania State Forests. The use of the State forests by campers, tourists, hunters and fishermen has more than doubled since 1924, when they were visited by 600,000 people. Last year one and one-half million people used the State forests for recreational purposes.

The thirty-eight States forest public camps have been renovated, tables and camp equipment repaired and the State forest roads leading to them from the main highways improved.

An unusually large number of requests for permanent camp site leases are being received by the department. The number if individual camp sites under lease at present is 1840 and there is every indication that the number soon will exceed 2000.

Many of the camp sites are used by fishermen. Last year the streams on the State forests were fished by 70,000 fishermen. It represented nearly one-fourth of the fishing licenses issued throughout the State. All citizens of the State are not only invited, but urged to use the State forests for all forms of legitimate recreation. One million three hundred thousand acres of State-owned forest land, located in twenty-nine counties offer special advantages to all for full enjoyment of the out-of-doors. All that is asked of those who visit them is to leave their camps as they would like to find them and to guard against forest fires. No group benefits more from our protected forests than the tourists and nature lovers and it is to the interest of these forest users to be careful with fire in the woods.

WELCOMES SUN WITH HEAT TO BAKE OUT FLU

Mild southern breezes and a genuine springtime sun combined happily today to produce the warmest day of 1928.

The prevading warmth spread over the district and other fortunate parts of the country.

Topcoats began to be discarded early in the day, as the morning dampness was dispelled by the rays of the sun, and by noontime a July feeling of lassitude had filtered into most offices.

Doctors declare that the warmth will do wonders toward dispelling the recent epidemic of influenze and colds.

JURY QUIZZING BY PENNINGTON IS SANCTIONED

Doran Is Overruled By Superior On Questionnaires

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 4.—Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, and immediate superior of Prohibition Commission J. M. Doran, yesterday asserted that the investigation of jury panels by Administrator John D. Pennington was legal and that the work properly should be done by prohibition attorneys.

Lowman thereby overruled Commissioner Doran, who said that the jury investigation was a matter entirely for the United States court, and that prohibition administrators should not pry into the private affairs and beliefs of jurors.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer, who had requested Pennington to carry on the probe, was firm in his intention to continue the work. He said: "The office of the United States attorney here will continue to investigate the qualifications and fitness of men drawn for Federal jury service."

Meyer emphasized that the attitude of the prohibition authorities as expressed by Doran would not deter him or his subordinates in learning what they desire about prospective jurors.

Doran, it was reported issuer orders to all prohibition administrators not to make investigations of jurors, but Administrator Pennington, not having received the orders, said he would continue to be advised by the United States attorney until given definite orders.

Poultry Disease State Department Head Is Appointed

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 4.—Appointment of Dr. Robert O. Biltz to head a special division for the study of poultry diseases was announced today by Dr. T. E. Munce, director of the bureau of animal industry.

Establishment of the special division was made necessary, Munce said, because of the ever increasing importance of the poultry industry of the state, department of agriculture statistics showed that the value of Pennsylvania's poultry is $25,000,000 and that it produces an annual revenue in eggs of $42,000,000.

Growth of the industry in the state has brought with it an increasing demade upon the animal industry bureau for assistance. In the past year the bureau has given blood tests for bacillary white diarrhea to 65,000 birds and this year it is estimated that the number will reach 200,000.

Under the new plan it is intended to extend the scope of the work being done for poultry raisers, paying particular attention to the study and prevention of various transmissible diseases.

The newly appointed chief of the division has been employed in the field and laboratory work of the bureau of animal industry for a number of years.

Deny Habeas Corpus Writ To Clinefelter

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 4.—Frank L. Clinefelter, former officer of the Lawrence Savings and Trust company, of New Castle, was denied a writ of habeas corpus in common pleas court here Thursday afternoon when Judge James B. Drew heard his petition.

Clinefelter asked for the writ because he was sentenced to serve from six to twelve years for embezzlement, when the maximum penalty prescribed by law is five years to ten years.

Clinefelter was sentenced February 7, 1925, after he was convicted of embezzling $15,000.

Judge Drew advised Clinefelter, however, that he may renew his petition for a writ of habeas corpus when the first five years of his sentence expires.

Street Oiling Up To Residents

City Workmen Not To Oil Any Streets This Summer, Is Announcement

That the City of New Castle will not oil any of the unpaved streets was the statement made today by Street Commissioner Harry Moore, following a consultation with Clayton R. Reeves, superintendent of Streets.

"In former years it has been the custom for those residing along an unpaved street to furnish the oil, after which men working for the city would put it on the streets. We cannot do this now. All the city plans to do this summer is to furnish sprinkling cans and faucets for barrels. Those people who want their streets oiled must furnish the labor themselves."

Has Important Role In Play

ELMER WILLIAMS

Again the Seniors of Ne-Ca-Hi step to the front. This time in their class play, the "Poor Nut," by J. C. and Elliott Nugent. Which play only recently released, has concluded a most successful run of over two years in New York City and has made most pronounced hits in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago and other of the larger towns where it has played.

Elmer Williams, the young Senior thespian, who is to be remembered for his excellent character delineations in "Pollyanna" and the "Tightwad," protrays the "Poor Nut", a college student, whose ambitions are to become an athlete, a Psi Sigma, a professor, and perchance, a hit with the Co-eds.

During the unfolding of the plot, a beautiful young lady leads him into some very amusing and intricate predicaments. The play is entrancingly delightful, ends happily and contains nothing sordid, offensive, or unseemly—nothing save good wholesome American fun.

And how the Poor Nut untangles himself! It is to be sure not one of the wonders of the world, but it is a riotious gloom-chasing expression of college youth. The play is being produced at Senior High on Thursday and Friday, of next week.

State Treasury Balances Large

Near Record Proportionts During Past Two Months

BOND ISSUES LIKELY TO MEET DEFEAT

(From News Bureau State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 4.—Balances in the State Treasury the last two months have been near record breaking proportions and the condition of the state's fiscal position is causing some financially inclined to wonder if the revenue for the present biennium will not be above estimates.

When the legislature last year received the governor's budget, the general fund revenue for the biennium June 1, 1927, to May 31, 1929, was estimated at approximately $130,000,000. Since the present biennium started receipts have been in the neighborhood of $2,770,000 with fourteen more months to go.

This is more than half the estimated revenue as contained in the budget submitted to the lawmakers. The legislature however, abolished a number of special funds and this money is now credited to the general. There formerly was a separate fund for gasoline tax collections, but this too, has been discontinued.

Despite the abolition of the many special funds by the legislature there is some belief here that a balance should be shown in the accounts for the biennium. There is always a tendency, however, in the event of a surplus for the legislature to make large appropriations.

Present indications are that all five of the proposed bond issues will be defeated in November. In that event the various agencies interested in each of the issues will make demands on the 1929 Assembly for larger appropriations. The 1927 session made generous grants for institutional expansion, armories, State Colleges and reforestration.

The only other bond issue is for highways and current revenue seems to be ample to care for future construction. If the bond issues are defeated, supporters of the various beneficiaries will ask the next legislature to at least make appropriations equal to those granted in 1927.

Preserves Eggs Now Is Agent's Advice

Only Clean, Fresh Eggs Should Be Placed In Water Glass, Says McCulloch

That only fresh clean eggs with good, sound shells should be preserved in water glass for future use is the advice of County Agent H. R. McCulloch who tells housewives how eggs should be preserved.

"If you are producing your own eggs," Mr. McCulloch continues, "they should be packed daily as collected. Do not use eggs more than a year old. Do not try to preserve eggs that have been soiled or washed. Any egg that floats when dropped into the solution of water glass should be removed. They may be all right to use but they are not good enough to preserve. Infertile eggs are preferable when they can be obtained. And one must remember that water glass cannot be used a second time.

Prince Carol Plans Return To Throne Is Rumored In Roumania

(International News Service)

LONDON, May 4.—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, is planning to return to Roumania to mount the throne, according to statements attributed to M. Jonescu in an interview printed by the Evening News Thursday. M. Jonescu, who is the son of a former Premier of Roumania is host to Carol during the latter's present visit to England.

"Carol never renounced the Roumanian throne," said M. Jonescu. "When he returns his son King Michael, will abdicate in his father's favor."

Carol, who was present during the interview, was quoted as saying:

"I did not leave Roumania for love of Mme. Lupenscue. She will not stand in my way if I return."

M. Jonescu said that if Carol returned to Bucharest, Mme. Lupescue would not accompany him, but would possibly return later.

Mme. Lupescue, with whom Carol has been living in France, accompanied him to England.

Naval Buildings Bill Is Approved By Senate Board

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The $250,000,000 new naval buildings bill was approved Thursday by the Senate Naval Affairs committee.

The measure would authorize the construction of fifteen fast cruisers, at a cost of $17,000,000 each, and one giant aircraft carrier at a cost of $19,000,000. This was the same program authorized by the House after it rejected President Coolidge's 71 ship program, which would have cost almost a billion dollars.

"This does not mean we have abandoned the rest of the program," said Senator Hale, (R), of Maine chairman. "We simply agreed to start work on these ships in the next fiscal year. We will build the others as they are required."

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENE RUBINSTEIN
Noted Beauty Expert

The Eyebrows in the Limelight of Fashion.

From self-care to beauty is a short step, and in thinking about the eyes it is even a shorter step than usual, for the beauty of your eyes can be made or marred by a well-cared-for eye-area, and well groomed eyelashes and eye-brows. This spring marks a new importance in eyebrows, since the new hat shape has been christened the eyebrow silhouteet. They have actually achieved a prominence which makes them most important as a feature of interest and charm. There are at least a dozen things you do to your eyebrows. And whichever you choose to do, take my very sincere and sensible advice and do it cleverly!

How? Well, first of all, if you are a certain type, don't attempt to make your face an eternal contradiction of itself through freak eyeborws. There are thin crescents of eyebrows which are charming on a few rare souls, and are disproportionate and utterly ridiculous on others. There are the slanting, oblique, oriental brows which, if you happen to have a flavor of old Spain in your blood or a faintly unusual Scherazhadeic type of beauty in your face, will be most attractive.

Otherwise, avoid them with a wide berth, for safety's sake. I cannot think of anything so dreadfully disinteresting to me as a nice typically American girl with eyebrows which deny every other feature, and her complexion as well!

* * *

Beauty's cardinal sin is shaved eyebrows. A deeply dyed eyebrow is also a tactical error, for it gives a dreadfully artifical, unbeautiful look to the face.

Were I to judge a contest of eyebrow beauty (and perish the thought!) I should place as a standard the following, which charm, I am convinced a great majority of women already possess:

Brows, neither thick nor thin. Perhaps the right brow slightly arched to give charm and piquancy to a youthful face. Rising in a slight curve toward the center, and then tapering down at the end to a thin line. Beautifully groomed, of course, with a tiny eyelash brush and a speck of eyelash cream to slightly darken and develop sheen and lustre.

And it isn't at all difficult to either make or meet my standard, because I am absolutely certain I have just completed a description of the Great American Eyebrow! Just remember that uncared-for eyebrows look the part. You cannot afford to overlook the most trival point of your ensemble, not if you wish to build for yourself the reputation of a smart woman. A tiny tweezers, a tiny brush, these are the tools of eyebrow grooming, the basic needs of pretty brows. Surely you will not neglect them.

Two Are Held By Police In Death Of Man At Party

Believe "Fair Weather" Friends Murdered Man And Robbed Him Of His Money

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, May 4.—Charged by police with the murder of William T. Condon 40 whose battered body was found in a deserted cabaret in Homestead, William Thomas, 40 and Joseph "Haude" Jacobs, 38 both of Homestead were under arrest here today and police searched for others believed to have been implicated.

Condon's slaying climaxed a party lasting several days, during which he and several friends moved into the deserted inn. Mrs. Catherine Condon, 38, estranged wife of the murdered man told authorities. There was no furniture in the building and the members of the party slept on the floor. Food and liquor were brought in to them.

Condon had recently received $2,000 from the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen as disability benefits and it was he who financed the orgy which resulted in his "fair weather" friends murdering and robbing him of the remainder of the sum, police asserted.

Will Hays In France, Talks Movie Problem

"Czar Of American Movies" Optimistic Over Concessions Made

FRAMES REPLY TO FRENCH PROPOSALS

(International News Service)

PARIS, May 4.—Will Hays, "Czar of the American movies," who came here to confer with the French government in the interests of United States film concerns, was optimistic today over the concessions made to the Americans by the government cinema control commission.

Under the compromise plan proposed by the French commission the four-to-one quota for foreign films would be abandoned and American companies would be permitted to import into France from 40 to 50 per cent of the total imports of 1927 when there were no restrictions upon importations.

However, the plan was so constructed that American companies would probably be compelled to purchase a certain number of French films each year. It is proposed that American film concerns will be entitled to seven importation permits for every film made in France by an American company. This proposal is designed to encourage the opening of producing plants in this country by American companies.

Hays said he would appear before the sub-committee of the French commission this afternoon to give his reply to the French proposals in view of the fact that the French intimated they were willing to make further modifications, it was believed that Hays, speaking for the American film industry, would accept the compromise. It is understood that leaders of the French film industry are willing to accept the proposals.

This Local Man Offering Praise For New Konjola

Says That This Medicine Relieved Him Of Kidney And Stomach Suffering.

MR. NEWTON A. GREEN
Seavy Photo

Konjola has already been a blessing to hundreds of people in New Castle and nearby towns. It has made men and women, in all walks of life, happy with the knowledge that life for them will no longer be one gloomy day after the other, suffering terrible miseries, but has given them the joy of living, by banishing the common ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

One report after the other is being received by the Konjola Man at the Love and Megown drug store, 204 East Washington street, this city, from sufferers who have already been relieved of their health troubles. For instance, Mr. Newton A. Green, 307 Fern street, New Castle, made the following statement.

"I am entirely relieved of the terrible miseries of stomach and kidney trouble since I have completed a treatment of Konjola", said Mr. Green. "It was the first medicine to help me and I feel that such a remedy should be indorsed to the public.

"For a long time I have been in a completely rundown condition and although I tried all kinds of medicine I never could find one that would give me any relief. I suffered almost all the day from lumbago and it was almost impossible for me to do my work because of the severe pains. But the worst trouble was with my stomach which caused me misery after every meal. Large quantities of gas formed after I ate the least bit of food. I was told this was brought on by constipation and even the strongest laxatives failed to help me. During the night I would have to rise several times because of weak kidneys and all day I had awful headaches that were due to a sluggish liver. I was steadily losing in weight and felt bad all the time.

"I noticed in the papers that Konjola was recommended by many local people for such disorders as mine and I finally made up my mind to give this medicine a trial. The first two bottles gave me more relief than all the medicine I had taken. The new feelings of health that came over me surprised me and I didn't know what to make of it. The pains in my back from lumbago disappeared and I could do my work without suffering the least bit. As I continued with the treatment my stomach got better until finally I was able to eat anything that I wanted without the least bad result afterward. Konjola regulated my bowels and gave me free movement every day. My kidneys are stronger and I never have to get up during the night, and all the liver trouble is gone. Konjola has helped me in every way and I am feeling better than I have in many years.

"My wife also has been helped by this medicine and we both think it is a blessing to our home. We recommend it every chance we get."

The Konjola Man is at the Love and Megown drug store, 204 East Washington street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Getting Ready At New Station

Plans And Specifications For Putting In Driveway Are Approved

Before the fire appartus is moved from East street station to the central fire house, South Jefferson street, the sidewalk will be removed in front of the new station and the section paved. Council also today decided to pave the intersection of South Mercer street extension (formerly Race street) where it joins South Jefferson street. The East street station probably will be abandoned in early July. Today Engineer Miller's paving plans for the new station were approved.

Council To Decide On Bridge Location

Members of city council today will confer informally and decide the exact location for the proposed North street bridge across the neshannock river. The city owns some ground but it is not sufficient and councilmen state that additional land desired is being held at a price which they deem exorbitant. Today council will decide whether or not to secure land nearby for a new location for an approach.

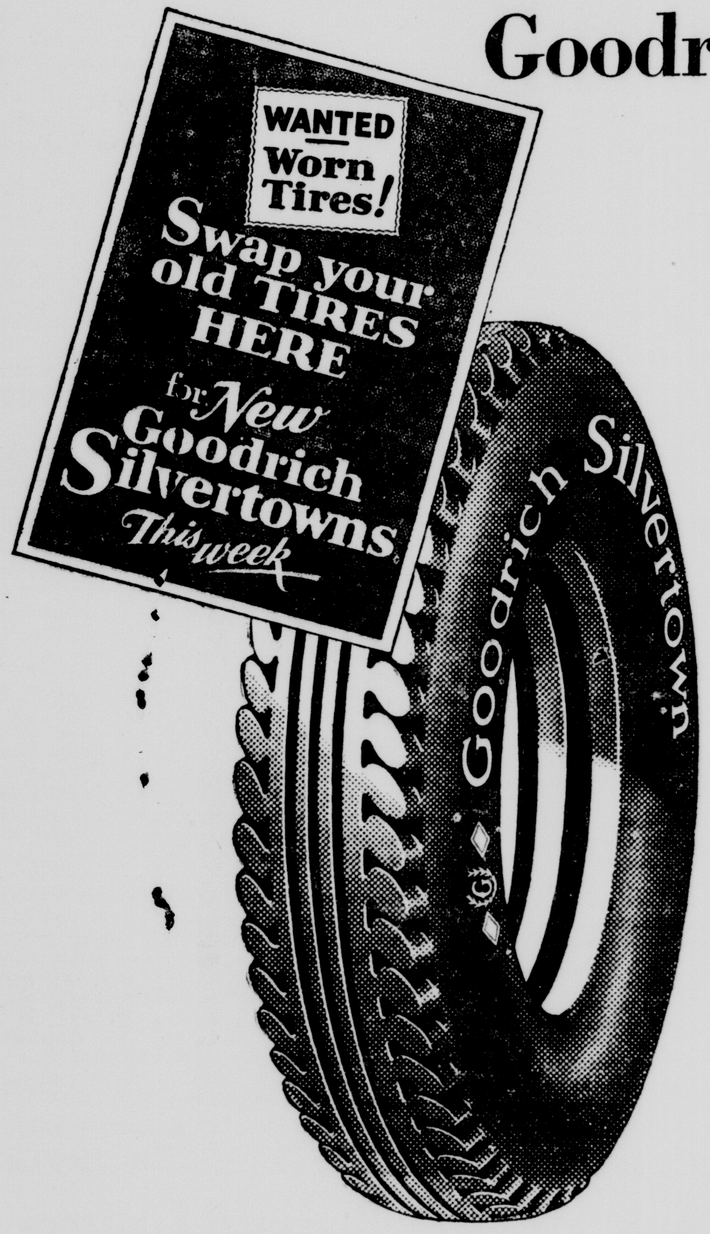
WANTED: WORN TIRES!

Trade them now—for new Goodrich Silvertowns



SUPPOSE your old tires do have a doubtful thousand or a risky five thousand miles in them. You don't have to ride on the tires, to get your money's worth.

Sell them to us. Let us apply the credit for those unused miles to reduce the price of new Goodrich Silvertowns.

You get the confidence—the safety—the traction of these famous tires. We get your worn tires which we can re-sell to other motorists. That's business, all around. Just like the way you've bought new cars for years—except for one thing. A tire can "blow out" and become almost worthless. A car does not. Don't wait till your tires blow out. Trade them now.

AND WHAT A TIRE YOU GET IN SILVERTOWN!

Judge them by what other motorists have found out in the past two years—and you'll find that money cannot buy finer tires.

Judge them by their tested construction—and you'll know why they're making such performance records. The hinge-center tread—final answer to balloon tread design! Water Curing—that Goodrich process which cures Silvertowns from inside and outside both—makes these tires tough clear through.

A wonderful tire in exchange for the tires that take all the joy out of riding. See us this week—this offer will not be repeated.

Drive your car to our service station today!

We sell nothing but Guaranteed Firsts, no seconds, with full protection for one full year against Accidents, Blow-Outs, Cuts, Bruises, Rim Cuts, or any other road hazard which might render the tire useless, even to full replacement if necessary.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Why not a sweet omelet for dessert when you are a business woman, or for any other reason want a quickly prepared and tasty dessert? This is the time of year when eggs are cheap and good. It behooves us to make use of them.

Braised Neck of Lamb Slices
Baked Potatoes
Creamed Carrots and Peas
Young Onions Jelly Omelet
Tea

Today's Recipes.

Braised Neck Slices—The neck should be cut in slices of about one inch thickness and boned with a thin knife. Fasten each slice into the shape of a round cutlet with a skewer. Sprinkle the surface with salt and pepper, cover with a horse-radish paste, dip the slices in beaten egg and then in crumbs. Sear both sides, add one cup of stock, cover and braise in a baking dish nearly an hour, or until the meat is tender. Make a gravy of the liquid in the pan and serve over the slices.

Baked Jelly Omelet—Five eggs, a little salt, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup tart jelly, two tablespoons toasted, chopped almonds. Separate the whites from the yolks of the eggs, beat the white with the salt until stiff, beat the yolks until thick and fold into the whites with the sugar. Melt the butter in a large omelet pan, pour in the egg mixture and cook until just beginning to set around the edges, then place the pan in a moderately hot oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and cook until the center of the omelet is firm, about five minutes. Heat the jam, pour it over half the omelet, sprinkle with the nuts, turn on to a hot platter. Garnish with whipped cream.

MEXICO CITY, May 4.—Robert M. Wilson of Chicago, an American mining engineer who was seized by bandits in the State of Guerrera, was subsequently released and is safe in Mexico City today. SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

On the Heights

By Joella Johnson

THE trouble with you, Joe, is just that you have the soul of a rabbit. You don't know how to take care of yourself—to stand up for your rights. You're a shrinking goofus!"

"What's that?"

"I dunno; but if there was such a thing, that's what you'd be. You've been bossed and ruled for the past 20 years and you don't know where you're at. Why don't you stand up on your hind legs and demand?"

"Aw, gee whiz, Bill, I like peace, I'm sick of fighting. Let 'em boss if they wish, I don't mind."

"Peace! Your poor egg! You call it peace to have three women standing on your Adam's apple and tellin' you where you get off! You make me weary. Come on. This is our stop"

"Sure I do—some times! I'm—I guess I'm so used to being bossed I don't mind any more."

"Well, it's time somebody checked you up. And your little pal is going to work out the cure."

"How?"

"I'll tell you later. Goodnight, Joe."

Joe continued on up the street, avoiding the puddle at the corner and bringing up before his own house with an appraising and loving look at the neat shrubbery which lined the walk. He picked off a handful of irregular stems carefully and went up the steps.

"Hello! Anybody home?" he called from the lower hall. A door opened above and his wife thrust her face over the railing.

"Don't make so much noise," she said briefly. "Martha has a headache. Put out the ash barrels before you do anything else; I'll be down in a little while. You can put the dishes on the table while you're waiting too." The door slammed again.

Ashes. A struggle with the bulkhead door. Feet carefully wiped before returning to the upper rooms. Dishes. Silver. He regarded his dirty hands reflectively and strode to the bathroom. Locked! An impatient voice from the other side of the door:

"What do you want? I'm shampooing my hair!"

"Oh, all right, Betty. I'll wash up in the kitchen."

From his seat at the head of the table, 20 minutes later, Joe regarded with sheepish pride his handsome daughters and his majestic wife in animated conversation. Twice he injected himself into the conversation; twice he was brushed aside carelessly. He lapsed int osilence. And at that moment he saw the letter beside his plate. The others were engaged in conversation and he had opportunity to slit the envelope, extract the contents and read it through before his startled exclamation brought their attention to him. He was staring at the letter, a little wildly.

"What is it, Joe?"

"Why, this is—this letter says—" The majestic hand of his spouse swept down and took the letter from his hand; she scanned it.

"Good heavens! Your father's uncle in Australia—dead—fortune—left everything to Joe—" She was flushed and incoherent. Excited babble of voices. And through it, penetrating at last to Joe's ears, the soaring voice of his wife:

"If this is true it means that we'll be rich, girls. We can move in the proper society at last; the society I knew before I married your father. We can live up on the Heights—"

"And I can have that European trip—"

"And some decent clothes, and a new fur coat—"

Slowly, something was stirring in Joe's breast; something which burned and stung. He was conscious of wrath!

"Wait a minute," he said quietly. "You're going ahead too fast. Give me the letter, Maggie. His wife regarded him frowningly.

"Give me that letter!" he roared, half rising from his chair. He thrust the letter into his pocket. "Now wait a minute. You're going ahead and making plans for what to do with all this money. You and the girls. Gowns and furs and trips and houses. You're going to buy 'em with my money, without even consulting me."

"Oh, for heaven's sake, father!" snapped Martha.

"Shut up!" He wheeled on her threateningly. "Another word from you, young woman, and I'll spank you, by gad. I'll spank you bow-legged! Now, you listen here I don't know whether this is true or not. It may be a joke or a mistake. But if it's true, just get this: it's my money. And it's about time you realized that. It's high time you got it through your heads that everything here belongs to me."

His voice rose almost hysterically, but he was enjoying himself thoroughly. He choked off his wife's open-mouthed protest. "You're living in my house and eating my food and wearing the clothes that I buy for you. And all you do is find fault with things. You're—you're a bunch of shrinking goofuses." He drew a long breath. "For 20 years I haven't had a word to say in my own house: . . . O. . . . uh! . . . Good night, Bill!"

"That was Bill Connors," he said, as his wife followed with his slippers. "Uncle John left me five thousand dollars there was no fortune." He adjusted the slippers and nestled in the deep chair, drawing on his pipe.

"Chickens! You know I—"

"Five thousand dollars would buy a lot of chickens, Maggie. I think I'll raise White Leghorns. They're sorter pretty around the place." He glanced across at her, calmly. "Don't you think so, Maggie?"

After a long time her glance fell. "Yes, I guess they are, Joe," she said.

A Reluctant Thief

By Margaret Taylor

TRUTH to tell, I was not noticeably heroic that memorable first night of my stay in Cooksville, whither my unreasonable father had sent me.

The Cooksville "Daily" gave me all the glory, presumably because I was the owner of the stolen bag containing a platinum wrist watch and some odd dollars. Also my vanity case had been stolen. But the heroine was my Cousin Madeline. Had she not awakened me when she did I would probably have died in my bed. A strong odor which permeated the room convinced all that a drug had been used to put us more profoundly asleep.

Madeline's screams had awakened the entire household.

"I felt a choking sensation," she recounted to the listening family group, after the police patrol had come and gone. "I nudged Nora."

"Yes," I interposed, "and I continued sleeping."

"And when she woke," Madeline went on, "I murmured: 'Get up, Nora, there's someone in the room.' Now, what do you think she said to that?" Madeline paused for effect, and I supplied the information for which my distressed aunt, uncle, and young cousins waited.

"'I'm afraid!' is what I said. After all, that is logic, isn't it?"

At 1 o'clock that afternoon the policeman brought my vanity case battered, but recognizable. He had found it in a field near my uncle's home.

"Guess we won't be long getting the thief now," the cop told us, by way of encouragement.

However, the day passed and our midnight visitor was still at large.

Doors and windows were secured, bolted before we again retired for the night's sleep. I tried to insist on occupying the room that had been mine the night before, but this my aunt and uncle would not allow.

"My room is safer," said Madeline, "and there we'll sleep." And there we slept without disturbance.

Fortunately for my nerves, the following morning much of the interest in Madeline's story had waned, and thus there were fewer repetitions.

But my anxiety was not allayed until, with the morning mail, I received the following letter:

"Dearest Sweetheart—Tarnation take the town of Cooksville! I see by its local paper that the countryside is being scoured for me. Dear heart, I am safe! But how, oh, how did our plans manage to go so astray? There I stood clutching your bag, your vanity case, and that big coat you had handed out to me, when I heard a woman's scream. Was it 'Murder?' 'Robers?' What? I waited until suddenly lights flashed. I heard the clanging of a police patrol, and then, dearest, I took to my heels and ran to my car. On investigation I find that I haven't your vanity case nor the belt of your coat. These must have dropped. But I reached New York safely, though I expected every minute to be taken back to Cooksville jail. Dear, the license waits impatiently, and so do I."

There was more, but that has really no bearing on the case.

"Dear Ed"—I wrote that same afternoon—"Here's how it happened. That loquacious cousin of mine, Madeline, insisted on keeping me company in the guest room. For two hours she talked in bed. Of course I had to undress so as not to create suspicion. She had been asleep but a short time when I heard your signal. And, dear, I had just handed you my few things, and had turned back to slip off my robe and into a dress, when I heard Madeline murmur sleepily, 'Nora, there is someone in the room.' I threw off my robe and crept into bed again, hoping she would fall asleep. Seems as though she had noticed a shadow on the wall, and it had worked wonders with her imagination. She nudged me, she yelled, she switched on the light, and is still talking of her heroism.

"Oh, dear, she gives me a pain! They found the old red belt belonging to my coat, but as no one here had seen the coat, they do not know the belt is mine. I had to own to the loss of the bag, watch and vanity case. The latter, by the way has been found. Some powder that I spilled has convinced every one here that it is a scented drug.

"But, honey boy, I've been thinking—don't you think we had better postpone the elopement till I am back in the city? It's safer!"

An Enchanted Cottage

By Clyde Weldon

NO one would ever have guessed that a road was there. Lois would not have known it herself if she had not heard old Mr. Bean speak of the days when the lumber business had made Windon famous, and when the West Hill lot had brought wealth to its owners, the Shermans. But those days of prosperity were over; the Shermans had gone, too, and no one knew just where. Somewhere in the West, he believed. He then launched into a lengthy history of the Sherman family, but Lois was not interested in it, and although she apparently listened intently, her thoughts were wandering on the West Hill, looking for a lost road.

"For there must have been one," she told herself. "Else how could they haul away the lumber?" She would explore in the morning.

The next morning, however, Mr. Bean had a twinge of rheumatism, and Mrs. Bean was all "upset" because she would not be able to send him for berries. So Lois took the hint and a tin pail and went across the road into the pasture. The season was late and berries were few and far between, so that it was nearly dinner time when she returned.

Shortly after noon, however, she left the house and disappeared down the road. Not far beyond the road descended to a, narrow valley, and along one side of this descent lay what was known as the West Hill. All the way down Lois looked for an entrance, but nothing could she see that resembled even so much as a pathway.

Near the foot she paused, and then, thinking she might perhaps work better from the inside out, she pushed her way resolutely through the bushes. But what was that? Scarcely had she gone three yards into the underbrush before a clear space appeared before her, and she saw that she had stumbled upon the very thing she was looking for, the lost road, grass-grown and rutted with wheel tracks.

With a little cry of delight Lois ran forward. She was always happy when she was alone in a forest, and doubly so when she could follow old, forgotten trails. This one was exceptionally interesting, for it opened on new vistas at every turn. Part of the road was corduroy, part of it a sawdust trail. Now it wandered by a shallow river where lilies grew; now through pine groves. And then suddenly, Lois stopped, for near a bend of the river stood a little white house.

"Oh!" cried Lois. "An enchanted cottage. What could be more wonderful!"

Mrs. Bean thought "what could be more senseless?" on hearing Lois' request when she returned. She wanted to spend the night in the little house she had found.

"I'd be scairt to death," said Mrs. Bean; but she lent Lois a pillow and some quilts, and the girl carrying the awkward bundle, hurried back to the lost road so that she might reach the house before dark.

Mr. Bean had been unwilling for her to take any matches or candles on account of the fire danger. Lois did not mind, however, as she arrived at sunset, and spent the evening sitting on the little piazza and watching the sunset colors reflected in the smooth river. When the darkness had really come she went inside, spread her bed on the floor by the empty fireplace, and was soon asleep.

She was aroused about midnight, conscious that a sound had awakened her. But she could hear nothing. Cautiously she tiptoed to the front door and opened it a little. A smell of mint came to her nostrils. She had seen some mint down near the river, but the odor had not been noticeable. Now, however, it was strong and pungent; and the inference was not pleasing; it had been crushed by something heavy.

Lois shut the door softly and stood very still. She could hear the beating of her heart. How she wished there were a lock on this door! Oh, why had she come? She was miles from anyone who could hear her scream, and who would ever think of the lost road?

Suddenly her heart seemed to stop beating. A pounding sounded at the rear of the house. Someone was trying to get in! Whoever it was thumped and banged, and with every blow Lois felt her courage growing weaker. Then, to her horror, the pounding ceased, and a heavy thudding followed—a thudding that grew nearer and nearer. Lois wanted to scream, but dared not. She recoiled from the door and flung herself into a far corner of the living room in an agony of fear.

The person had seen her; she was caught. But the voice was young and pleasing.

"Hold your head up!" it cried. "Stop that prancing around!"

With a gasp, Lois ran to the window. Outside, on the grass, stood a young man and a white horse. She could see them plainly in the clear moonlight, and she noticed that the man was very handsome and that the horse was the most beautiful she had ever seen. And this was the enchanted cottage down the lost road! What if this should be the prince and his white charger?

At that moment the man saw her. She had forgotten that the moon was shining on her, too.

"Who are you?" he cried, coming nearer. "Won't you please open the window?"

Lois felt no fear as she opened the window, and the young man looked at her as if to say, "Where have you been all these years?"

Lois laughed. "No I'm an intruder. I found the lost road and this cottage, and I wanted to spend the night here, it's so lovely."

"Very lovely," he said; but he was not looking at the house.

"Are you sure," he added, "that you won't vanish?"

"Quite sure. But I nearly vanished with fright a few minutes ago."

"You must have been terrified, and no wonder. I'm no end sorry. I just brought my horse on from the West, and he's not very tame yet. He broke loose tonight. By the way, we're neighbors. I'm staying in one of the cabins farther up the trail."

"I haven't been that far," said Lois.

"Haven't you? This road goes out on the State road, just beyond. I came in that way. Which way did you come?"

"Well, you just tell Mr. Bean," said the young man, "that one of the Shermans is back on the West Hill again."

"You?" cried Lois. "And I've been staying in your house! What must you think of me?"

"Everything nice. And may I see you at the Beans' tomorrow?"

Lois was still sitting by the window when morning came. She looked at the sunlight dancing on the river, and blinked her eyes. Then she remembered, and became suddenly awake. The prince had come, and he had come down an old lost road.

Who Will It Be?

By Hazel Courtney

AT the sound of footsteps on the porch Callie Burnham looked out the window and exclaimed, "Here comes Annie. Come in, Annie! I was just tellin' Marm p'raps you'd be over."

Annie dropped a kiss on the cheek of the older woman.

"How's everything?" she asked.

"Feel like a girl," quavered Marm

Annie sat down and began, "Well, have you seen these goin's on—Jocyrus Walker renitin' half—."

"Land, yes!" Callie interrupted "Hawlin' down all his stuff and buyin' out Davis' store in the bargain. We been figurin' what he's up to."

"Well, I been a thinkin' and I've decided he's calculatin' to git married."

"'Twan't hard to come to that decision. But who's he goin' to marry?"

"I'd say Lizzie Woods."

"Lizzie Woods! He won't marry her if she did board to his place and try to get him last Winter. Jocyrus'll stick to Hittie Tarbox. You see! Hittie's kept house for him ever since Jim died and—"

The sound of a sleigh driving in cut short Callie's argument and prevented Annie's eager reply.

"Here's Jennie Butler and Daisy. Jennie'll have heard something over the telephone, or 'twon't be 'cause she hasn't listened in. Hello, Daisy. Come in, Jennie, and tell us what you know about Jocyrus."

Jennie settled into the biggest chair and pulled off her great fur coat. "It's 'bout Jocyrus Walker I'd like ter know. Everybody on the line's been talkin' 'bout him terday, and just 'fore noon I see him go by with a load of goods. Had his cow hitched on behind. S'he movin'?"

Callie answered "Int' the upper half of the Paine place. Moved down his things and he's bought new dishes and land knows what. Goin' ter git married, we say."

"Lizzie Woods!" Callie sneeerd, but Annie's shrill voice cut in.

"That's just what I say, Jennie. We all know Lizzie likes him, kind er dependent as she is, and we know she's worked ter git him while Hittie's just plod along gittin' meals fer 'em both and never noticin' how the wind was blowin'."

"Grecious sakes, Annie, keep still," snapped Callie. "If here ain't Hittie Tarbox on my doorsteps this minute!"

In another moment Hittie was greeting them in her slow, near-sighted way.

"Just got through the quiltin' down to Tillie's so I thought I'd stop in on my way up. How are ye all?"

Callie recovered first. "Oh, we're all pretty good. How are you? Must seem kinder queer livin' down to Idy's after bein' up with Mr. Walker so long."

"Well, course 'tain' t like home, though Idy's nice. Guess I'll go down to Ralph's next week. He wants me and he's my only boy."

"Mr. Walker—er—he'll sorter miss you, I s'pose."

"Well, I been with him quite a while. 'Twouldn't be strange. Could I borry that pattern fer a tatted edge, Marm? Thought I'd make Ralph's wife some doilies."

Callie got the pattern, Hittie discussed it with Marm, then rose, saying, "Idy'll wonder where I'm gone," and so took her departure.

Callie came back from the door. "Idy'd miss her! She's only boardin'. What's it to Idy? She acted suspicious to me!"

"Now I don't know's she did, Callie. Do you think so, Jennie?" Annie asked. Callie flushed and turned to the window. "Land, what a day fer comp'ny. Here's Idy. Guess she didn't miss Hittie much."

Idy couldn't stop long. Callie began to question her. "Had Hittie said anything?"

Idy answered: "Hittie ain't makin' any preparations s'I can see. But she's sly. I wouldn't be s'prised none. This quiltin'-bee—"

"Lizzie'd like to have Jocyrus mighty well, I know, but she ain't played her cards right. Hittie'll have him."

Callie glowered across at Annie. Ida rose. "I'll have to run along, I just thought I'd see Marm a minute."

Hardly was the door closed after her when Annie began. "Good one she is to talk about catchin' men, when she'd had three husbands aready, and—"

"I wan't tellin' her, Callie Burnham!"

Callie put one hand behind her and settled back in her rocker. "It's Hittie now just as sure's you're born!"

"Well, I ain't satisfied, and I won't be till I see it, that Jocyrus Walker's marryin' Hittie Tarbox," Annie persisted.

"Now, I dunno. You look here, Callie—"

Callie, not heeding, jumped up and went to the door. "Here comes Jane Sanborn. She'll know, livin' right in the lower half o' the Paine place herself. Come in, Jane. I was hopin' you'd be down."

Jane chuckled. "Wal, 'twas kinder queer. Tom 'n I was talkin' 'bout it this noon and then what'd one the kids do but go out and ask Jocyrus. I listened by the window, and I just held my breath. Wall, Jocyrus says, 'Why d'yer want ter know?' Johnny grinned aa' says, 'Oh, I just wondered.' Jocyrus says, 'If yer want ter know, I ain't marryin' nobody. I'm sick o' women folk messin' 'round or else settin' under foot. I'm goin' ter have one place comfortable and ther won't be a petticoat in it. And you can tell every dang gossip in town the same thing, if that's what they're waitin' ter know.'"

Jane's face fell; silence followed. Jenny pulled on her coat. "Ain't that Fred comin' fer us? Come Daisy. Good-by, Marm. Glad you're up terday."

Mari's Dream Child

By Monte Darrell

WITH clinched hands and a contraction of the heart that was almost a pain, Mari Kennedy listened to the sounds that came from upstairs. Wails and shrieks that struck at her there in the darkness of the Duncan hallway like little keen-edged daggers. Her sister was spanking one of the little Duncans again.

It seemed to Mari that she was always spanking one of them for something or other—or for nothing or other. Flinging her gloves and handbag on the living-room table, she flew upstairs in undignified haste, quite unbecoming to one of her years. Mari found them just as she had expected to find them—Hetty Duncan, irately red of face, yielding a hairbrush over the little, prostrate form of Jamie across her knee. Jamie, the last of the Duncans to arrive on earth six years ago!

The shrieks stopped abruptly. Spankings usually came to an end when auntie appeared. Hetty slid him off her knee. The child promptly ran to auntie, and was received in open arms, which held him while he finished his gurgled sobbing against her shoulder.

Hetty Duncan's temper often made her say things to her sister which she would have bitten her tongue off afterwards to have left unsaid. Both hands on her hips, she regarded her now with flashing eyes.

"See here, Mari Kennedy," said she, "you're nothing but an old maid, and don't know a thing about children. If you'd had six brats like I've had maybe you could come with a bit of advice about bringin' 'em up. I'm about crazy with 'em sometimes. I dunno what the Almighty wishes so many on some for, and none on others, I'm sure."

She marched out of the room in high dudgeon. Mari, holding Jamie's little shrinking form close, wondered, too. She would have given her soul for six children. Not from choice was she a spinster. She had "never been asked." Perhaps men stood in awe of her aloofness. She had always been shy, except with children. That was why she taught school.

But Mari Kennedy had a child—a dream child! A little girl! Mari Kennedy was her mother. She had had her ten years now, but she had never told anybody about her. Nobody would understand. Every night this little dream girl came to her, and told her things. Told her how a little boy she knew lied to his mother because he was afraid of being punished. Told her how a little girl said she didn't love her mother because she had her hands tied behind her back for doing naughty things, and had to go out playing that way. Many things she learned from this little dream girl.

The dream girl wasn't pretty. She had red hair, that curled in damp weather, and a straight little nose peppered with freckles. She looked very much as Mari had looked at 10.

Mari had a room for the dream child to which nobody had access except herself. It was a dainty little room, freshly sweet, with Mother Goose pictures on the walls, a bookcase where Mari gathered all the books that girl children liked to read, and plenty of dolls and pretty toys.

At night in the darkness Mari would kneel by the little white bed to say goodnight to her dream girl before going to bed herself. Then she locked her up in the little room, and in the innermost recesses of her heart until the next night.

That night, after telling bedtime tales to the six small Duncans, romping with them hilariously, most unbecoming to a spinster fast nearing the 40 mark (according to Hetty), and after tucking each and all in beneath the covers with a good-night kiss, Mari departed for home.

Home! A little four-room heated apartment in a remote section of the city! If it had not been for the little locked room it would have stifled Mari.

It was raining, and Mari was out of sorts because Hetty had punished Jamie. There were still traces of tears on his cheeks when she had left him.

She hurried into the hallway. A little girl came forward quickly to meet her. She was about 10 years old. She wasn't pretty. She had red hair, which curled in tight little tendrils about her face. Her straight little nose was peppered with freckles.

"Are' you—Miss Mari Kennedy?" asked the child, tremulously. "Because if you aren't, I guess I shall have to stay here tonight anayway. I've asked 'bout everybody, and it's raining awful hard."

"Why—why," gasped Mari. "I know you. You're my little dream girl."

"No, I'm not," contradicted the child. "I'm Gloria, your Cousin Leslie's little girl. You're one of the two only relations he's got, and he's dead. He told me to go to Cousin Hetty, if I could find her name, 'cause she's married, and could take care of me better. She knows more about kids." She looked up at Mari with the candid gaze of childhood. "I don't think so, though. I think you know more about kids."

Dazed, Mari hurried the child up in the elevator. Cousin Leslie! She knew there had been a Cousin Leslie, whose wife had died leaving him alone with a child. So this was the child. She smiled when she thought of this little mite being added to Hetty's already full quota.

"Listen, Gloria," she said to the child. "You're mine now. I've been waiting for you."

England Makes Aviation Study At Big Airport

BY DR. ROSWELL T. PETTIT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CROYDEN, England, May 4.—"We shall be very happy indeed to have you see what we are doing and trying to do in commercial aviation in England," said Sir Sefton Brancker, director of Civil Aviation of Great Britain.

Croyden Airdrome is forty minutes ride from Croyden. The buildings at the "Liverpool of Britannia's Air" are of substantial stone, the hangars are huge and are built of steel and concrete. A new hotel is just being completed.

Major Branckley, manager of the Imperial Airways, and Captain Markham, commanding air officer of the Air Ministry, were kind enough to explain the workings of the great airport.

Airplanes as they are built today, need a vast amount of room in order to clear the ground. This field here is about a quarter of a mile square and soon is to be doubled. It is not unusual for thirty or forty planes to arrive and depart from this port in a day. English, French, Dutch and Belgian companies operate here.

Government Owned

But in order to handle this traffic without planes crashing into each other, a dispatcher is necessary and this office, the control tower, is on top of the Air Ministry building, which dominates the entire field. This is the center of activity. Of course, there is the weather bureau and the wireless receiving and sending apparatus and the lights and beacons departments but they are all merely agents of the officer in the control tower.

In a second the control officer knows the direction from which the request comes, he gets two other stations by wireless two hundred miles away to call the plane. They get the angle and immediately relay their reports to the control officer.

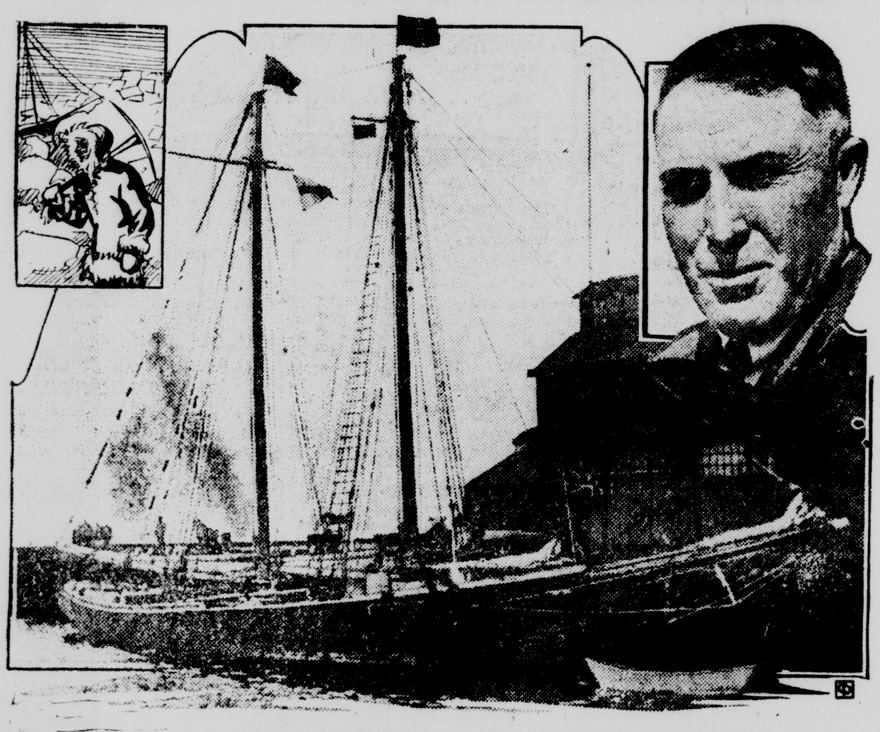
Locates Lost Plane

Then with the "direction finder" and a rapid calculation in three minutes he telephones back to the plane giving the pilot his exact location on the map.

Pilots ask for weather, for condition of the field in landing. Reports come in hourly from weather bureaus in Northern France and Belgium and the south of England.

"The channel is the worst of our worries," explained the control officer. "We have landing fields almost everywhere in England and France where a ship can put in but if a ship goes down in the channel we must know immediately where it is. We have a tug for instant call on both sides and only once have we had a plane land in the water."

SEEK LOST CIVILIZATION IN NORTHERN PACIFIC



Traces of a lost civilization, said to have rivaled and preceded that of the Aztecs of South America, are being sought in an expedition to the islands off North Asia in the Pacific. Relics of the lost age, known as the Toltec, have been found in the Siberian islands and the expedition is confident that its new finds will be rich in scientific value. The cruise is known as the Stoll-McCracken Siberian Arctic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History. The trip is being made in the schooner Effie M. Morrisey, shown above, under the command of Captain Robert A. Bartlett, right. Bartlett was skipper of the Roosevelt, Peary's North Pole ship, in 1909.

Underground City Well Inhabited

(International News Service)

BUDAPEST, May 4.—More than a thousand people are still living in the underground city of Budateleny, not far from here, in caverns built beneath a cemetery.

The caves were resorted to as far back as the year 1838, during a bad flood in the regions. Since the stone is soft and chalk-like it was easy to carve furniture as well as little homes which, it said are very warm in winter and the contrary in summer.

The infant mortality rate is rather high but unusual longevity is the rule among the adults. The principal industry is the culture of mushrooms in the underground city.

Cunningham Is Under Arrest By Senate Summons

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Sheriff Thomas Cunningham today was formally arrested by U. S. Deputy Marshal Mallon and taken before Federal Judge Oliver B. Dickinson on a warrant for his removal to Washington for trial charged with contempt of the U. S. Senate.

The U. S. Assistant District Attorney merely gave a brief history of the case and introduced the contempt indictment found against the sheriff.

Bombshell From War In Strasbourg Forest Kills Three Workmen

(International News Service)

STRASBOURG, May 4.—Traces of the World War are still turning up from time to time and producing disasterous results. Three workmen stumbling upon a shrapnel shell in the forest of Grandmontaine near here, caused it to explode and were blown to bits. The forest is being carefully searched for other bombs to prevent further casualties.

Fear of the draft has not developed any noticable symptoms of cold feet in President Coolidge.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

YOU CAN'T PAINT A HOUSE WITH "APPLESAUCE"!

Don't let anyone tell you "cheap" paint is cheap. That's applesauce. As a matter of fact its costs considerably more than UPCO PAINT, the best house paint that money can buy. "Cheap" paint costs less per gallon, yes. But a cheap price per gallon merely means you buy more gallons. Cheap paint only covers 200 square feet to the gallon while UPCO guarantees 360 square feet to the gallon. Then a very brief period sees the finish of "Cheap" paint. It fades, peels, and chips. While UPCO, made of the finest materials with sun-proof and weather-proof colors averages five years. And its rich looking to the very end.

Knickerbocker Degree Staff Performs Well

Initiation Is Part Of Program At P. H. C. Meeting Thursday Night

A session of interest to the members of New Castle Circle No. 5, P. H. C. was that of Thursday night when important matters were cared for following the class initiation with the Knickerbocker degree staff in charge.

A feature of the meeting was the presence of Deputy W. L. Canfield whose address was of interest to the members. And later at the close of the business session refreshments were served by Guardian Helen Ray and her committee. Among items disposed of Chairman A. L. Conn of the picnic committee stated that the annual event would be observed on August 2nd at Cascade Park and this will mean the gathering together of a large number of district circles who will enjoy the usual sports of the day, under the auspices of an excellent committee of arrangements.

On Monday night the degree staff of the circle will enjoy the hospitality of the parent circle at Sharon, and will assist in the exemplified degree for a large class of candidates. An excellent program has been arranged by the Sharon Circle and a large number from No. 5, will undoubtedly attend the session.

Many degree teams throughout the state will participate in the competitive drills and No. 5 is not only proud to add their Knickerbock girls in the contest but also that they will have charge of the big class initiation in the exemplified degree. A program of unusual merit has been promised for the next regular session of No. 5, on Thursday, May 17th when every member of the circle ought to be present.

Ambition---Blessing or Curse?

Brass Tacks On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

BY DR. ALVIN E. BELL

There is one thing without which no person's life can be a success, and yet this thing which is so essential to success in life has ruined more lives than any other thing. The thing is ambition. Just as a tool may be used by a man either to win the livelihood or to work his self-destruction. Let those who doubt this statement study the effects of ambition in the lives of Napoleon and Lincoln.

Jesus was on his way up to Jerusalem and the cross. He had just given his disciples his third clear forecast of his sufferings. This announcement should have been met with the most unselfish spirit of sympathy and desire to serve him in his path of self-denial and serving love. But instead, the disciples were disputing among themselves which of them should be the greatest in his kingdom. James and John even tried to trick Jesus into giving them reserved seats of highest honor in his kingdom at his right hand and his left hand: "Teacher, we would that thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall ask of thee." And when Jesus demanded to know their wish before promising to grant it, they replied: "Grant unto us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and one on thy left hand, in thy glory." It was a supremely selfish ambition. And the fact that all of the disciples had been quarreling over the same thing shows that they were all daubed with the same stick.

Greatness Unsought and Secured Through Unselfish Service.

Then Jesus began to teach them the true and only way to greatness for them. It would be found in the path of self-denial and serving love, and must be purchased by drinking the cup of death and passing through a baptism of their own life's blood. They were to seek greatness in an entirely different course from that in which the heathen world was seeking it. The world's idea of greatness was that of a pyramid, with the great one at the top supported by all the rest: "Ye know that they who are accounted to rule over the Gentiles lord it over them; and their great ones exercise authority over them. But it is not so among you; but whosoever would become great among you, shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you, shall be servant of all."

The Inverted Pyramid of Greatness

Jesus' idea of greatness was that of an inverted pyramid with the great one at the bottom bearing up all the rest, supporting them in a ministry of service. This was an absolutely new are revolutionary idea when Jesus proposed it.

Rotary's Motto

Such organizations as Rotary have taken up this idea of Jesus and expressed it in slogans such as this: "He profits most who serves best". Every city has its service clubs, and every great industry has its service department. But for all these Jesus blazed the way by his interpretation of greateness through service. Of this principle he, himself, is the supreme example: "For the Son of Man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." There are no short cuts to success which make a detour to avoid service.

(The International Uniform Lesson for May 6 is Mark, 10, 35-45, the subject being "Greatness Through Service," and the Golden Text, Mark, 10, 45: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.")

The ceremonial will be held in the Scottish Rite Cathedral at New Castle, and it promises to be one of the greatest events of the kind ever held in this section. Work is going forward to make the class a record breaker.

Over 1500 Shriners from Pittsburgh are expected to attend and Butler's delegation will number several score. The Butler Caravan will have a number of candidates to present and the "crossing of the sands" promises to be a spectacular event.

Court House Clerks Especial Guests

Mercer Residents Attend Show; Other News Of County Seat

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., May 4.—Among the clerks of the Court House who were guests of Attorney Louis J. Weisen, of Sharon, at the performance of the "Mary Grow Round" given by the Cap and Gown Club of the University of Pittsburgh, at Sharon, Wednesday night, were: Misses Catherine Lewis, Ruth White, Geneva Albert, Maude Miller, Helen Wagstaff and Mrs. Howard Palmer, from the Recorder's office; Miss Hazel Simpson, from the Prothonotary's office; Mrs. Ruth Reed and Mrs. William Jones, from the Commissioner's office and Miss Grace Glenn, from the Clerk of Court's office.

Benjamin Bowers, of Greenville, called on Mercer friends, Wednesday, and while here, announced that he was celebrating his 82nd birthday. As a part of the festivities he called on J. C. Moon, local race track man and the owner of a string of promising Peterkin colts in training on the Mercer track. Mr. Bowers for many years the owner of one or more steppers, accompanied Mr. Moon to the Fair grounds, where he gave the different strings in training the once over. Elizabeth B. for a number of years owned by his son, Ralph, who presented her to Edwin Moon last fall, was inspected by Mr. Bowers. His visit to Mercer was an enjoyable one.

Stokely school in Cool Spring township closed Wednesday after a successful eight months' term. Carrying out a promise made to the students some time ago by Frank McEwen, a member of the school board, they were brought to Mercer for a tour of inspection of the Court House and Jail. In both buildings they were shown about by officials, and the different offices of the Court House explained. Naturalization court was in session at the time, and they had a glimpse of the making of American citizens out of those born in another country.

At the jail they were taken in charge by Deputy Sheriff Samuel Callahan, and escorted through it, and the workings of the new cell system and other features were explained to them by the obliging officials.

The students thoroughly enjoyed their visit to the county-seat and gained considerable first hand information.

The Shakespeare Club closed its season with a meeting at the home of Miss Henrietta Magoffin, Tuesday evening. A synopsis of "Marco Millions" by Eugene O'Neil, was given by Miss Elinor Adams and a paper which was to have been given on April 17th, on "The Producers of Today," was read by Mrs. H. A. Black. The club voted to take part in the pageant for Old Home week.

School children who wish to plant a flower garden again this year, may secure seeds which will be distributed by the Burbank Club at the Herald and Record-Argus offices Saturday morning, between 10 and 12 o'clock. This year the club is not offering prizes to the school children, but they can enter their flowers at the Mercer Fair on the flower show of the club.

The seeds are being distributed by the club, gratis. It is hoped that all children wishing seeds will call for them on Saturday morning.

The 44th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hughes, was celebrated Monday, April 30, by a family dinner, at their home, Beaver street. The dinner was a complete surprise. College Racquet Wielders Clash

Westminster Champs To Meet Duquesne University At Pittsburgh

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 4.—Westminster's tri-state conference championship tennis team swings into action this afternoon in Pittsburgh when the Duquesne University racqueteers are met on the Bluff courts.

The five men who brought the championship to the United Presbyterians last year will face the Dukes this afternoon in the season's opening match. These men are: Captain Paul Gibson, New Kensington; Francis McDowell, Jamestown; Richard Robinson, Massillon, O.; William Schafer, Youngstown, O.; and Wilham Clark, of New Wilmington.

The Dukes have played but one match this season, losing to the strong Notre Dame outfit on Tuesday. Last year the Westminster team won out by a scant 4-3 margin at Duquesne, so a lively contest is expected this afternoon.

Following the Duke contest today, the Blue and White court men will have one week in which to prepare for the match with Geneva here on Saturday, May 12th.

Smith-Reed Ticket Seen As Possibility

By CHARLES P. STEWART,
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and New Castle News.

Occasionally some politician suggests this combination—in a whisper—and then dives for his cyclone cellar. They all know about what would happen to the man whom Jim Reed overheard proposing him for a voteless tongue-tied job like the vice presidency.

The hint comes as often from a Republican as from a Democratic source. The idea simply appeals irresistibly to any politican's sense of spectacular.

However nobody means or takes it seriously.

It's a mere flight of wild fancy—the thought of the incredibly ding-busting campaign that pair would put up.

* * *

Smith and Reed are both too wet. Either at the head of the Democratic ticket would need a bone dry to balance him.

Smith—urban; Reed—rural in his antecedents; even if he does live in Kansas City.

* * *

Not a word out of Smith—despite their rivalry—to Reed's disadvantage. Reed on the other hand shaping his whole pre-convention fight so as to benefit Smith if he (Reed) fails to turn the rick.

* * *

And yet—and yet—

Are they? They're both damper than a good many voters like, certainly. But are they too damp to be endured?—if they can't be equaled politically.

It's decidedly more than conceivable that the Houston convention will swallow Smith with a bone dry running mate. If it weren't that Smith evidently stronger than he is it's amaginable that Reed might win his party's indorsement, of course, with a bone dry to supplement him.

If Smith and a dry and Reed and a dry would pass muster—then why would the two togther be absolutely impossible?—provided they'd be more formidable united than any other possible frame-up.

Three twenty dollar gold pieces were presented at a meeting of the New Castle Branch of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriter's Association, at a dinner meeting in the Elk's Home last night, to the winners of the recent essay contest conducted in the New Castle high school by the association.

Juniors—Miss Krana Sherman.

Sophomores—Miss Helen Brown.

President Samuel Lewis of the local association presided, and after the menu had been served introduced Miss Frances McClaren, head of the English department of the New Castle high school, who explained how the contest had been conducted, and introduced each of the winners, who, in turn, read her prize winning essay. Many valuable points concerning life insurance in its many phases were presented, the essays being of an exceptionally high order.

Judges who represented the insurance organization in making the prize awards were Monte Hyde, Julius Blaha, Robert Trotter, S. S. Myers, Sam Lewis and Dan Reeble.

The prize winners are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sherman, of 427 Hillcrest avenue; Dr. and Mrs. E. C. McCombs, of 402 Moody avenue, and Mrs. William Brown of 718 East Reynolds street.

Following the banquet event the insurance organization held a business meeting considering matters in connection with the state convention to be held in this city later in the month.

Charge Thefts At Brewing Plant To Colored Man

William (Willie) May, aged 24, negro arrested Thursday when caught in the act of stealing brass and other valuable equipment at the plant of the Standard Brewing company on Sampson street, will be charged today before Alderman J. Lee Cooper with breaking and entering and larceny by Chief of Police C. C. Horner.

He was caught in the act of committing some of his depredations by the watchman of the plant on Thursday. Officer Samuels, who resides in the vicinity, was called to assist and placed him under arrest. Other officers were then called and he was placed in the city jail.

He had dismantled a switchboard to get some little bits of brass worth a few cents. The damage done amounted to hundreds of dollars. He also stole oil cups from engines and machinery.

Burns Are Fatal To Croton Woman

Mrs. David C. Gibson Dies As Result Of Burns, This Morning

As the result of being painfully burned when her clothing caught fire at her home, 1122½ Croton avenue last Monday about noon, Mrs. Eunice Gibson, aged 60 years, wife of David C. Gibson passed away Friday morning about 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Gibson was alone in the house when the accident happened. She was never able to tell just what occurred as she never regained consciousness. It is believed that she was standing on a ladder painting the walls of her kitchen near the gas range which was lighted. As she was standing above the stove, the bottom of her dress at the back caught fire and was burning before she was aware of it. She rushed out of doors, her clothing all aflame to her husband who was in the yard.

With the assistance of Mr. Gibson and a neighbor the flames were extinguished.

Mrs. Gibson was severely burned about the back from her waist up the back of her arms and one hip. Her face and hands escaped injury. Mr. Gibson had his hands painfully burned in an effort to put out the flames.

Her death comes as a terrible shock to her husband and immediate family and her many friends in this city.

Mrs. Gibson was born in New Castle, February 27, 1868 a daughter of Vernon and Mary Stewart Flowers. She was a member of the Croton Avenue M. E. church and the Tribe of Ben Hur.

Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. David Cox and a son William V. Cox both of this city. She also leaves two grandchildren, Miss Frances and Ruth Tichborne.

Funeral services will take place Monday, May 7 at 2 p. m. from her late residence on Croton avenue. Burial will be made in Graceland cemetery.

Those who have been ill are getting along nicely and it is believed that the danger of any more cases is past.

consisted of the class A mixed chorus, in which only two schools contested. Academy high of Erie did not compete in this event, owing to the fact that they did not know that they were to have an entrant until shortly before the time of the concert. As a result New Castle and Grove City struggled along with the latter getting the judges' decision.

Next came the class A boys' chorus work in which Academy high of Erie, the Grove City high school and the New Castle senior high contested. Academy was awarded the first place in this while Grove City was placed second and New Castle third.

The class A girls' chorus contest marked the finish of the afternoon chorus work in that class. Five schools—New Castle, Grove City, Academy of Erie, Central of Erie and East high of Erie—endeavored to grasp first place in this. Here again Academy won out. Grove City was second, Central high third, Erie east fourth and New Castle fifth. This concluded the class A chorus work of the afternoon.

Next in the United Presbyterian church auditorium came the class B chorus work from 2:15 until 3:15.

Bessemer Girls Win.

In the second group of class B chorus work the girls' chorus contest, Bessemer, Albion and Townville were represented with the Bessemer high school getting first place and Albion second.

From 3:15 until 4:15 p. m. the class C orchestra contest took place in the United Presbyterian church auditorium. The Gridley and the Roosevelt junior high schools of Erie and the Benjamin Franklin and North street junior high schools of this city and the junior orchestra of the Academy high school of Erie contested for first place. Here the first two honors went to Erie schools again. Gridley was named to first place, Roosevelt to second. Ben Franklin of this city to third position, the Academy orchestra fourth and the North street junior high organization of this city fifth.

Although the North street group did not achieve any of the first honors in this group, nevertheless, considering the fact that this organization is a new one and the players in it have never before performed at a contest of this kind, the members did well and are to be congratulated for their effort to win. Ben Franklin also did well and showed the competing organizations that New Castle has a fine junior high orchestra.

The orchestra contest in which the North street school and the Ben Franklin school organizations participated marked the close of the afternoon's contest in the United Presbyterian church.

Now to relate the program that was carried out in the high school auditorium, which commenced at noon and continued through until about 4:30 p. m.

Orchestra Competition.

Seven schools, two from Lawrence county, namely, the Bessemer and Union township high schools, competed in the first event which was the class B orchestra contest. Mars was chosen to first place, Bessemer to second and Evans City to third. Other schools and their ranking order were Harrisville fourth, Union high fifth, Albion sixth and Sharpsville seventh.

At 2:15 the class A orchestra contest took place in the high school auditorium between the East high of Erie, the Academy high of Erie, the Oil City high school, the Grove City school, the Central high school of Erie and the senior high school of this city.

In this event New Castle was named the winner by a unanimous vote of the adjudicators, while Oil City was chosen as their opponent for the evening concert. This part of the program was not finished until about 4:30, at which time the afternoon program was adjourned.

The evening program in the United Presbyterian church opened at 7 o'clock, with the afternoon winners, Albion and Bessemer, of the class B mixed chorus, ready for action. The judges, however, did not change their decision and gave Albion first place and Bessemer second.

Bessemer Wins Again.

Then came the class B winning girls' chorus with Bessemer, Albion and Townville contesting. Bessemer of Lawrence county was chosen to first place, while Albion and Townville were placed second and third, respectively.

At 7:25 the two winning class C orchestras of the afternoon concert, Gridley and Roosevelt, clashed their violins, clarinets and what not for the final first place honor. But the adjudicators gave Gridley the decision.

At 8:10 Mars and Bessemer contested for the honor of first place in the class B orchestra event, but the judges' decision remained unchanged and gave the first place standing to Mars.

The class B boys' chorus contest, which had been scheduled for the evening performance was carried out in the afternoon between Albion and Bessemer, with the former getting first place.

The evening program in the high school auditorium commenced at 7 o'clock also. The first final elimination to be held was the class A winning boys' chorus in which New Castle received third place in the afternoon. Academy and Grove City competed once more but Academy was given first place again, with Grove City and New Castle second and third respectively.

New Castle Wins.

Then New Castle and Oil City competed for final honors in the class A orchestra contest, but here again the judges' decision was not changed and New Castle won this event.

The class A band contest followed this with bands from Greenville, Grove City, Academy and New Castle entered. New Castle received first place, Academy second, Greenville third and Grove City fourth. Each of these organizations played the standard contest piece, "Finlandia", and another selection of their own choice.

Irvine Leads Massed Bands.

After the winning class A mixed chorus and girls' chorus had been run off, with Grove City winning the former and Academy the latter, LaVerne E. Irvine, director of music in the high schools of this city and in charge of the New Castle group at the contest, led the bands which competed against New Castle, enmasse. Mr. Irvine received loud applauds from the audience when he appeared on the stage to lead the entire group. He won the privilege of leading the massed bands because he was the director of the leading band.

The selection played by the massed organizations brought the musical part of the program to an end and the winners were announced soon afterwards.

Announcement of the winners in the contests was made in the United Presbyterian church at the same time.

By winning the class A band contest, the senior high school organization is now eligible to enter the state contest to be held at Harrisburg on Saturday, May 12. Whether New Castle enters it depends upon whether or not enough money can be raised to send the boys there.

Crowds fram for and near gathered in the college town yesterday for the affair. The largest delegation of entrants came from Erie and numbered about 550 students. These contestants occupied 11 coaches of a special train which came over the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad.

New Castle sent 280 students, but they were transported in automobiles, more than 70 automobiles and three busses.

Final Standing.

Class A—First place, New Castle with 14 points; second place, Academy with 13 points; third place, Grove City with 12 points.

Class C—First place, Gridley Junior high school of Erie; second place, Roosevelt Junior high school of Erie; third place, Ben Franklin of New Castle.

Adjudicators of the contests held in the high school auditorium were J. Vick O'Brien, director of music at the Carnegie Institute of Technology; Maj. Wilfred Otto Thompson, director of the United States Army band, stationad at State College and Dr. Arthur Heacox of the Oberlin conservatory of music, while the judges of the events in the church auditorium were Dr. William Erehart, director of music in the Pittsburgh schools; Claude Rosenberry, director of music in the schools of Pennsylvania and James O. Woodside, noted concert singer.

More Attention Likely For Local School Choruses

With the victory of the senior high school orchestra and band in the Grove City competition on Thursday night is most gratifying to the school authorities, the showing of the choruses may lead to a change in the method of training choruses, according to one of the officials today.

The New Castle choruses were small in comparison to the choruses of other schools. Erie was much larger and even Bessemer had a large chorus.

The quality of the work of the New Castle choruses was good, but the numbers were inadequate. It is possible that the board of directors may take some action at the next meeting towards putting more chorus work into the curriculum of the school system here.

CITY APPROVES BILL.

Council today approved a bill for $149 presented by the New Castle hospital to the city for board and nursing of William Riley assistant engineer who was injured while on duty.

Crook Versus Crazy Horse

THE REFUSAL OF THE SIOUX TO RETURN TO THEIR RESERVATION WAS ACCEPTED AS A DECLARATION OF WAR AND IN FEBRUARY, 1876, GEN. GEORGE CROOK MARCHED FOR THE POWDER RIVER REGION WITH A STRONG FORCE OF INFANTRY AND CAVALRY.

GEN. REYNOLDS WITH THE CAVALRY PUSHED RAPIDLY INTO THE INDIAN COUNTRY, WHILE CROOK FOLLOWED AT A SLOWER PACE WITH THE FOOT SOLDIERS AND THE SUPPLY TRAIN. IN MARCH, REYNOLDS ATTACKED THE VILLAGE OF CRAZY HORSE'S BAND ON THE POWDER, PARTIALLY DESTROYED IT, AND CAPTURED 700 PONIES.

CRAZY HORSE RALLIED HIS INFURIATED WARRIORS ON THE BLUFFS COMMANDING THE VILLAGE AND OPENED SUCH A HOT FIRE THAT REYNOLDS RETIRED HASTILY. THE INDIANS PRESSED AFTER THEM AND SUCCEEDED IN RECOVERING THEIR PONIES.

CROOK, COMING UP WITH THE MAIN BODY, MET THE CAVALRY RETREATING. COLD WEATHER PREVENTED FURTHER OPERATIONS, AND CROOK FELL BACK TO HIS BASE, LEAVING THE SIOUX VICTORS OF THE FIRST CLASH OF THE WAR.

NEW CASTLE OPENS SEASON SATURDAY

Coen May Hurl For New Castle

FIRST HOME GAME OF LOCAL TEAM

Following a sleep of twelve months Old Man Baseball will make his reappearance Saturday afternoon at Centennial field when Canton comes here to play New Castle in the first O & P league clash to be staged in this city.

Manager George Textor had his aggregation of New Castle players at Centennial field last evening and according to the fans who witnessed the practice the city will be ably represented in the O & P circuit this year.

Officials of the club have arranged to have Fred L. Rentz, publisher, introduce the mayor, W. H. Gillespie who will make a short address after which Judges R. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers will pitch and catch the first ball.

Home Boy On Mound

After these proclivities are over Manager Textor will send his team into field and while he has not made a definite announcement the probability exists that "Jewie" Coen, a New Castle hurler will be assigned to slab duty.

Last week Howells pitched against New Castle at Massillon and he held Textor's outfit to eight hits and it is likely that he will be sent to the slab to oppose Coen. Yoxcheimer will catch Coen and Ripple will go behind the bat for Canton.

To Start At 3:15 P. M.

According to Carm Sacco, business manager for the club, the game will start at 3:15 p. m. and admission to the grandstand will be 75 cents and bleachers 50 cents. The admission to grandstand for ladies has been cut to 25 cents.

The probable batting order follows:

New Castle		Canton
McKay, c.	f.	Evans, c. f.
Zwoder, l. f.		Zandt, 2 b.
McCullough, l. f.		Whitehouse, 1 b.
Shannon, 2 b.		Hossler, r. f.
McCoy, 1 b.		Landis, s. s.
Hughes, 3 b.		Polush, 3 b.

Geneva To Meet Tech On Saturday

Expect Close Contest At Reeves Stadium On Saturday Afternoon

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., May 4.—Geneva's Covenanters are all set to engage Carnegie Tech's track men at Reeves' Field Saturday. The warmer weather this week has put "Bo" McMillin's boys in fine shape and a vast improvement in performance is assured. Geneva's jumpers and pole vaulters particularly, have bettered their previous marks. Duncan has been vaulting around eleven feet all week and Sole, Baird and Caldwell jumping around five feet, eight inches. Last Saturdays' meet showed Geneva to possess three of the finest hurdlers in the district in Captain Lloyd, Lathom and Ewing. Dwight Piper should not lose another half mile race this year and is set to establish a new Geneva record. Elroy Lockley has developed into a fine quarter-miler. Geneva is glaringly weak in the dashes and possess only fair strength in the distances. Carnegie showed considerable strength in their victory over the P. A. A. and are capable of pushing the Covenanters to the limit.

The meet will be in charge of capable officials, with M. R. Glover, referee, W. D. Merriman and Dr. H. H. McCarter, judges, and E. Y. Calvin and Brown Sterrett, as starters. To enable the fans to see the meet and also the Elks' ball game, the meet is scheduled to start at 2:00 o'clock daylight saving time.

Dilks Moving Up In Coast Derby

Arthur Dalton Spends Afternoon And Night With Runner

Expects To Cut Loose At Chicago

By ED FRITZ

T. C. Bollard, 327 North Shenango street, has received a letter from Arthur L. Dalton, 1331 Sixteenth street, Detroit, Mich., which speaks optimistically of Earl Lin Dilks' chances of finishing among the leaders in the Los Angeles-New York derby. According to the letter from Arthur Newton, adviser to Dilks, has been holding the runner back until Chicago is reached and then, having had experience running over concrete highways, Dilks expects to finish daily among the leaders and gradually cut down the lead held by the leaders, some of whom are not in good condition.

According to Bollard, Dalton went expressly to see Dilks and his letter, written from St. Louis, is self explanatory. It follows:

Has No Worries.

"Will write you a few lines as I promised to. I met Dilks in East St. Louis Friday and spent the afternoon and night with him and I saw him start out the next morning. He finished in fine shape and seemed to be in fine condition, not the least tired and in good spirits. His leg trouble is over, there is no soreness or swelling and he told me he was taking things easy and giving his leg a chance.

"His trainer is holding him back but he intends to start finishing up front in the next few days. I see he was near the front at Springfield, Ill., on April 30, so I think he will be among the leaders from now on. It will not be much of a job for him to cut his time from now on and at the finish he will be among the first ten for there are several among the leaders who are not in very good shape and they have been lucky nothing has happened to them so far.

Experienced on Concrete.

"They do not know anything about running on pavement where Dilks will be at home so you may look for most anything to happen in the future. I told him that you expected to see him in Chicago and that more of the New Castle boys are preparing to come out to meet him as he comes closer to New Castle.

"He told me he would of quit the race but after New Castle began to pull for him he made up his mind to go through and put New Castle on the map. He appreciates what the people of New Castle are doing for him and that he intends to be up where everybody will feel proud of what they have done for him and if they do anything more I do not think they will be sorry for it.

Pull For Dilks.

"You can tell everybody that they should not get discouraged because Dilks is not in front. I talked with Mr. (Arthur) Newton and he told me he did not want Dilks in the lead or among the leaders until they reach Chicago and I think he knows what he is talking about because he is the champion runner of the world.

"I will close so I can mail this. Tell everybody to pull for Dilks from now on." The letter is signed by Arthur L. Dalton of 1331 Sixteenth street, Detroit.

Yesterday Mrs. Dilks received a letter from her husband in which he said he had moved up 10 places during the last few days and that when the letter was sent he was 31st in the race. The News yesterday received a letter from Dilks in which it was obvious he is in fine condition and spirits. His letter was humorously written and said that not one of the runners have a bunion though some writers call it the "bunion derby".

Westminster Track Men Lack Experience For Meet Tomorrow

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 4.—Despite the fact that the Westminster track aspirants showed some good, as well as some bad, form in the inter-class meet here Tuesday, it is certain that the men are not quite in the best of condition for the opening meet here tomorrow afternoon when Allegheny invades the United Presbyterian camp.

Cold weather and rain have hampered outdoor drills so that it will take at least two more weeks to get the Blue and White runners in the best of condition.

The work of Captain William Hartwell, Louis Peresenvi, Walter Hutchison and Orvil Mirtz in the inter-class meet Tuesday was all pleasing to Coach Graham. He fears, however, that the Methodists will excel in the field events and in the hurdles.

With good weather prevailing tomorrow, it is almost certain that one or two of the Westminster marks in the distance will be broken. Then, too, William Cromwell may surprise in the 440-yard run.

Dempsey Signs Stage Contract

MAY FIGHT IN SEPTEMBER, CLAIMS

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, May 4.—Jack Dempsey, the man who won't fight any more, has signed or will sign a theatrical contract with David Belasco, which specifically provides that Dempsey may be allowed to step off the stage and into the ring at any time he sees fit.

Estelle Taylor, wife of the man who won't fight any more, made this statement last night before the couple left for the Wilmington, Del., home of Miss Taylor's parents. Previously, Dempsey the fighter in permanent retirement, and Tex Rickard, the man who retired him from circulation, had spent all of Wednesday evening in each other's company and found so little to talk about that they lunched together yesterday noon, in another effort to discover whether they didn't really have some interests in common, after all.

They probably talked about the pitiable state of affairs in Grand Rapids and this naturally was the reason they got together in strict privacy.

Talks Of Fight.

The clause in the Belasco contract, giving Dempsey the right to retire from the show in the event of getting a ring engagement, was inserted at the ex-champion's insistence. When it was pointed out that stage work might interefere seriously with a Dempsey fight in the immediate future—in September, for instance.—Miss Taylor made a rather significant remark.

"He'll be in shape to fight," she said.

The actual signing of the theatrical contract, it seemed, was postponed until after Dempsey had talked with Rickard yesterday. Miss Taylor didn't say that her Jack was waiting to get Rickard's approval of the arrangement and the writer's greatest handicap is in being a gentleman. Anyhow, he didn't question the lady about this point.

Both of the Dempseys will appear in the case of the show, which she said would go into rehearsal July 1 and have its premiere at Atlantic City in August. It will reach Broadway a week or two later.

"A clause in the contract allows Jack full immunity from its terms in case he wants to enter the ring or take part in an exhibition bout," Miss Taylor explained yesterday. "The contract was to have been signed this afternoon and all I am empowered to say is that we are perfectly satisfied with its terms."

The Dempseys will return from Wilmington on Sunday and will leave New York the following day for Los Angeles. Jack, it appeared, would go into training immediately upon his return to the coast.

Into training for what? Well, it seemed that Jack was to engage in two fights a day in the show and maybe that is the reason he wanted to be right—the artistic urge all over again, I suppose, the desire to submerge self in the character to be portrayed.

Baseball scores and notices turned into the Sport Department of The News must be in the office the night the game is played, or in an emergency not later than 9 o'clock the next morning, and must be written plainly, and be complete. U. S. LOOKS BEST IN POLE VAULTING

The United States looks almost sure to cop the pole vault event of the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam, Holland. The nation is unusually strong in this sport and there seems to be little opposition among foreign countries. Two outstanding American vaulters are Sabin Carr, of Yale, top, and Lee Barnes, of Southern California.

Pirates Open Long Stay At Home Lot, Many Choice Games

Eastern Teams Invade Forbes Field With Plenty Of Confidence

It is a very delectable menu which the schedule-makers have set up for the baseball fans of Western Pennsylvania for the next month or so, for in that time every club in the National League, except Cincinnati, will lock horns with Donie Bush's National League Champion Pirates on the Forbes Field lot.

Bush's athletes have suffered with those of the other clubs from the cold wet Spring weather, but now seem to have rounded into the form that is generally predicted will lead them to the top of the National League race, and keep them there throughout the season.

The Boston Braves, with Rogers Hornsby in the lineup, is the first of the seaboard clubs to show at the Pittsburgh ball lot, playing the Buccos on May 3, 4, 5 and 7. With Hornsby in the lineup and several other new faces on the roster, the Braves are considered a lot stronger than last season and pretty generally picked to win a lot more games than they did last season. The Braves have a habit of playing bang-up ball when performing at Forbes Field and turn in close games with startling regularity.

Giants Are Improved

Following the Braves, the New York Giants, the big show of the national pastimeri are booked to move into Forbes Field for a four game series on May 8, 9, 10 and 11. The Giants have gotten off to a good start this year and, as usual, are putting up the strongest opposition the Pirates will have to face, for the Giants, along with the St. Louis Cardinals, are booked to give the Buccaneers a chase right down to the wire.

The Brooklyn Robins, with Dazzy Vance, Jess Petty, Max Carey and other public idols, follow the Giants, meeting Bush's Buccos on May 12, 14, 15 and 16. For some reason the Brooklyn boys always have proven troublesome for the Pirates, and some of the very best games played on Forbes Field are turned in by Wilbert Robinson's Brooklyn pastimers.

Then com[illegible] Phillies to Forbes Field on M[illegible] and 19, with a new ma[illegible] Shotton, at the helm. The Phillies, also, appear to be stronger this year and should win more games than they did last season. The Phillies, while not a top-notch ball club, are not without their colorful stars, for Cy Williams, Fred Leach, Fresco Thompson, Heinie Sand and Jimmy Wilson are real stars.

After a brief jaunt to Cincinnati for four games the Buccaneers return to Forbes Field to meet the Chicago Cubs in three games on May 24, 25 and 26. St. Louis then returns for the Decoration Day series opening with a game on May 29, followed by morning and afternoon games on the holliday, Wednesday, May 30, and closing their series with a single game on May 31. With the Cardinals in the pennant race, this is sure to be a torrid series, and an exceptionally appealing holliday bill, for it is very seldom that two real pennant contenders meet before a holiday crowd. Chicago then comes back for single games on June 1 and 2, after which the Buccos hop off for the first eastern trip.

The mail order system of the Pittsburgh Club is in operation for all these games, and a remittance with return addressed envelope mailed to Forbes Field will bring back choice tickets for any contest.

Sympathy Of Local Baseball Fans Is Presented To Manager

Game Goes 11 Innings With Brandit In Star Role

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 4.—The Boston Braves opened their western invasion at Forbes Field, Thursday, and won from the Pirates, five to four in an eleven inning game.

Brandt, a rookie southpaw, hurled for Boston and should have had the game in nine innings. Farrell's errors in the second and the seventh game the Pirates two unearned tallies.

The tilt was captured in the eleventh on singles by Brown and Farrell with Bell's sacrifice injected. The Pirates lost a chance in its own half of the final inning when L. Waner hit into a double with two on and one out.

A Son Of Italy — By Feg Murray

Here is the original "Fighting Bob" for has he not two "Roberts" in his name and is he not a battler by trade? Robert Roberti of Italy, a promising young heavyweight, will get a crack at his first real classy opponent in the feature bout of the Bronx hospital fund fights at Madison Square Garden, New York, May 11th. Roberti fights "Shuffling Phil" Scott of England, then and if you peer closely at Philip's record you will observe that he has a 20-round decision over Tom Heeney to his credit. Yes, that's the same Thomas who fights Gene Tunney for the heavyweight title in July.

But to get back to the "so-beeg, so handsome, Roberti." This "Bob, son of battle" comes from Lucia, Italy where he was born in 1903. After knocking a bunch of Braidas, Farriens and Sebills, he came to New York last summer, and was immediately taken under the well-feathered wing of that good Signor Umberto Firgazy the famous promoter. The rest of his 1927 record consisted of four consecutive K. O.'s, two drawn battles, then four more K. O.'s. Of course he soon became a member of the T. W. H. K. O. Q. R. Club. (Those Who Have Knocked Out Quentin Rojas.)

The best thing Roberti did in 1928 was to knock out Monte Munn in Boston after taking one of the Nebraskan's heaviest rights on his chin. Scott, it will be remembered knocked out Munn in ten rounds. Doc Bagley who is behind the big Italian used to handle Gene Tunney before Gene was the American heavyweight champion and feels certain that Roberti will be face to face with Tunney in a title fight next year.

Recruits Face First Big Test

Rookies In Both National And American Leagues Subjected To Tests

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES PROVE INTERESTING

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK May 4.—New interest was injected into the baseball races today with the start of the intersectional battles. The western teams of the American league are making their first swing around the eastern circuit while the National league's eastern representatives are following Horace Greeley's advice.

Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Cleveland and the St. Louis Browns will test their new-found strength against fresh opposition. Star recruits who have rolled up impressive batting averages will be subjected to the fire of alien sharpshooters and critically judged by strange crowds.

First Place at Stake.

Cincinnati and New York begin a battle today for possession of first place in the National league. The rookies of the St. Louis Cardinals will get their first glimpse of Brooklyn's famous pitchers .Chicago and Philadelphia, the two tailenders, will clash and Boston plays Pittsburgh again.

The lowly Chicago White Sox are advancing with fear and trembling upon the stronghold of the world's champion Yankees ,entrenched in first place in the American league. The reorganized St. Louis Browns meet a crippled Washington team. Cleveland's hustling Indians hope to gain ground at the expense of the Boston Red Sox and the disappointing Detroit club faces tough opposition in the Philadelphia Athletics.

Rookies Win.

The Athletics stubbed their toes yesterday on Ed Morris young right-hander of the Red Sox. Morris, a former Southern leaguer, held the A.'s to four hits while his mates bunched their blows off Ossie Orwoll and won a 3 to 1 decision.

By nosing out Pittsburgh 5 to 4 the Boston Braves served notice that they will be no set-up for the western clubs. After making two costly errors Dr. Eddie Farrell drove in the winning run in the eleventh. Ed. Brandt and Ray Kremer did the throwing.

Ty Cobb May Quit Baseball Career Before Season Ends If His Playing Doesn't Improve A Whole Lot Soon

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Staff Writer for Central Press and New Castle News

It seems to be an even bet that Ty Cobb will not finish the season as a player if he continues to show the lack of form the early games have brought out.

"But he signed a contract," comes the protest.

Well, is the answer, what if he has an agreement with Connie Mack—contract or no contract—which will permit Ty to step out the day he figures his usefulness as a player is ended?

Cobb told me at Atlanta last spring that while he hated to give up baseball he did not care to continue in it after his worth was impaired to any great extent.

He certainly has slipped this season. Baseball men who have seen him in action since the season opened have remarked of his pathetic attempts to field hits which would have been pie for him in years gone by—and the lumbering way in which he slid into a base on one or two occasions.

Cobb is proud. He cherishes many recollections of tribute and glory accorded him in his career. He won't stay in the game long enough to find himself dropping out of sight. He'll step out.

There is one thing to be considered, however. Cobb delayed his training this season, partly because of his indecision regarding his future—and partly (in all probability) to promote the idea a bit that he cared little about playing, unless the price was right.

A few warm weeks may render his legs a bit more supple and his muscles more flexible. This, at least, will carry him into the sultry days under the late summer sun.

* * *

Along with the other daily alibis handed out by pitchers, infielders and losing managers we have the old one that the "lively ball" is still in use.

It probably is—if there ever was put into use. There has always been a sneaking impression that most of the "rabbit" nature injected into the ball was the figment of the pitchers' imagination and the psychological effect of the dream was enough to give the batter a toe hold.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, grand old man of the majors, was discussing batters, baseballs and such one night in a general fanning bee. And when the matter of the lively ball came up he made this logical statement:

"If you put 'em where the batter doesn't like 'em and can't get behind them you don't have to worry about the rabbit ball."

The ball is just about as spherical in shape as it ever was, barring the ones Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig may have socked a minute previously. If the batter is unable to hit the ball "on the nose" or time his swing well he isn't going to drive it any farther than he did 10 years ago.

Also, there is the statement of a big league manager, who quite obviously wouldn't care to be quoted on the matter.

"I don't know any more than you do what changes have been made in the ball in recent years," he said. "But I do know this:

"Before this home run hitting craze swept baseball a home run, of course, was an oddity. At the same time, however, it was a more terrifying experience to a pitcher to have one socked at his expense.

"On the other hand the pitchers of 10 and 12 years ago took such a blow philosophically and went right on with their knitting and pitching. Today there are mighty few hurlers who hold their nerve after someone has turned one of their shoots back for a home run."

Sport Ritticisms

Flood relief should take care of ball club owners, too. It has poured so much this spring that when one manager takes a shower he gives himself a rain check.

You can't play the outfield on stilts, but there is nothing in the rules against base runners wearing deep sea diving suits.

If this wet business keeps up umpires will have to start wearing cork-lined pants so they can keep afloat at least nine innings.

Philadelphia is hardest hit. Shibe park turnstiles are rusted tight and the infield is full of nothing but tadpoles. The flag pole looks like a periscope, and even the peanuts are water-logged.

* * *

It's tough enough for such veterans as Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker to have to gallop after fly balls without having the added danger of stumbling over catfish and sitting down on snapping turtles.

A rookie on the Phillies is said to have sunk between second and third. When he came up he wore a seaweed mustach. But his ears were full of pearls. Which is the only luck he'll have this year unless he's traded.

What is a used car bargain? Is it a used car of uncertain age and mechanical condition, sold at a so-called "marked down" price? Or is it a good car, sold by a reliable dealer, for a price that he knows is fair? We know automobiles. That's our business! And we know what they're worth when we take them in trade on new Buicks. We always give our used car customers a square deal—both in the price and in the condition of the car. Our reputation is too valuable to risk by anything short of absolute fairness and honesty.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—Heavy trading in general motors, American Can, Chrysler Motor, America Linseed and other speculative favorites in the first hour today was the market's first response to the unchanged rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank.

After having hovered on the verge of the 200-mark for nearly a month, General Motors was finally pushed over the line in a burst of speculative enthusiasiam in this period, the stock selling as high as 203, for a gain of 6 1-2 points. American Can also recorded a new high above 990 and American Linseed sold through par in a heavy turnover. Wabash led a brisk advance in the rails, and Standard Oil of New York, pushed up to 39 1-2 in very active trading. The New York Stock exchange reported total loans to its members at less than $100,000,000 below the five billion dollar mark.

Prices were uniformly higher; wheat and corn prices were practically unchanged in the first hour. Call money 5 per cent.

General Motors Climbs Upward

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 4.—In a burst of speculative enthusiasm, General Motors sold above $200 a share on the New York Stock Exchange today. The stock had been bid up to 199½ in the latter part of April, but failed to reach its 200 objective at that time.

Expectation of a special cash dividend of at least $2 a share, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share, furnished the driving power behind the big motor stock at the beginning of trading today. At 203, the stock showed a new gain of 6½ points and a rise of 73 points from the February low.

Bishop Bast Is Placed On Trial

Behind Closed Doors Ministers Act As Trial Judges For Copenhagen Bishop

(International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—Behind closed doors and all proceedings guarded with the greatest secrecy, Bishop Anton Bast of the Copenhagen area of the Methodist Episcopal church was placed on trial here today.

He faces charges of imprudent conduct in connection with his administration of church affairs in Denmark. Danish courts already have found him guilty of this charge and the misapplication of mission funds. Following his conviction he served three months in Danish prison.

His trial here will be before a church court of seventeen ministers, termed "triers of appeals," presided over by a bishop.

The suspended bishop arrived in Kansas City unannounced early this week and has remained in strict seclusion waiting his trial. He maintains his innocence and has many friends among the 878 delegates who are attending the quadrennial general conference.

ART NEHF

A sore arm that caused the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds to figure Art Nehf had outlived his usefulness as a pitcher is a sore arm no longer, and Art is out winning ball games for the Chicago Cubs.

Nehf improved a little last year, but did not win regularly enough to suit his boss and was dropped. He asked Joe McCarthy, Cub manager, for a chance and got it. Now Nehf's condition appears to be as good as ever and it will be no surprise, except to the two managers who dropped him, if the southpaw returns to the winning column.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

We're all human, and the temptation to say "I told you so" is one that reaches out and grabs all of us at times. And at the risk of being charged with membership in this unlovely club, I want to say "I told you so" today. And this concerning the clean sweep made by the New Castle Senior High School orchestra and band, in the competition in Grove City.

The youngsters won everything but the title to the building they were playing in. The judges were unanimous in their decision and if this isn't worth crowing a bit about, then nothing is.

It just goes to prove once more that here in New Castle we have school musical organizations that rank with the best in the country, and that in La Verne Irvine, New Castle has one of the best instructors and supervisors in the country.

It was a wonderful victory, one that showed the people over Grove City way just what it was all about, and if you have a boy or a girl in either organization you have a right to stand around with your chest expanded.

When you get a deed to your property, it may never have occurred to you that the original deed probably goes back to Ben Franklin or to the Six Nations. Now and then one of the original deeds bobs up, and on Thursday, J. J. McConnell of near Volant, brought one of them in. It is the original deed to the farm he purchased from William Vosler out near Volant and is a mighty interesting instrument.

The deed is on parchment and is dated August 25, 1787. It is a gift from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the widow of Thomas Parker, a Revolutionary soldier. The ground designated in the deed is located in Westmoreland county, which gives you an idea of how the counties have been divided since. The deed is signed by B. Franklin and has the seal on it which reads, "Both Cant Survive".

Its interesting, this old deed from Ben Franklin and should be framed. The deed gives the land to Hannah Newens, the widow of Thomas Parker, but reserves the right to collect one-fifth of all the gold and silver mined on the property. Wonder if ever there was either metal mined out there?

There seems to be something new in the way of women's hosiery. Saw a pair this morning of a delicate cream tint, with a broad black stripe runing down the back. And anybody who makes any comparison about the appearance of those stockings has no place in this colyum.

Haven't heard any more about those eighteen goldfish down at the Moravia Hump. A Constant Reader wants to know if the gold fish were wild, and if the gold in them is 18 carat. All questions as to gold fish are referred to Roger Francis.

Kentucky Chivalry

Representative Virgil Y. Eversole, coal operator, of Harlan, Ky., has made it possible for women of his state to avoid jury duty. A bill, introduced by Eversole in the state legislature, making jury service for women optional, has become a law in the state. Few Kentucky courthouses, especially in the mountain districts, are equipped for the conveniences of mixed juries.

Deer Become Problem To State Sportsmen

Unless some measures of control is effected, and effected promptly, the deer herds in Pennsylvania will either perish rapidly as a result of starvation or will be so weakened constitutionally that our future stock will be weak and poorly developed, and will have poor antlers and a semi-domestic disposition which will throw them out of the class of game animals and make them unsuitable for sport, is the position taken by the Board of Game Commissioners of the state.

Many incidents have been reported during the past winter in which deer have either perished from starvation or else they have been so weakened that if the condition continues the future deer will be of very poor character.

Much damage has been done to orchards and crops of the fields, due to the deer not being able to find sufficient natural nourishment in the forests and the interests of agriculture must be protected. Disease caused by overcrowding is also killing off deer in many section of the state. Many of the deer have been forced by starvation to eat the foliage of pne, hemlock, rhododendron and laurel and thus their death is caused by eating this food, which is not suitable for deer.

Another problem facing the sportsman on account of the super-abundance of deer, is the scarcity of food for other game. Food-bearing plants which should furnish berries, seeds and nuts for squirrels, rabbits, bears and game birds, are eaten by the deer making the problem of feeding these other animals more difficult. Grouse have been driven out of certain localities because the lack of sufficient cover in the brush.

Thus the problem for the sportsman of the state to solve is how we can reduce the present herd of deer that there will be enough food for the deer as well as other game, and enough to insure the development of hardy fawns which will carry on the reproduction of stock which can properly maintain itself and of which we will be proud.

Smeal Applies For Renewal Of License

Council today was advised that William Smeal, bus line operator, had made formal application to the public service commission for a renewal of permits to operate bus lines between New Castle, Bessemer and Enon Valley. The city will not oppose the request.

It was stated in council by City Solicitor Robert White that it is probable Smeal will make application for a permit to operate a bus line through Atlantic avenue to the Oakland section as the Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric company is to abandon its bus line May 6 when street car service is to be resumed to the seventh ward.
